NOT AT ALL PROBABLERoosevelt Is Learning the Views of Financiers—The President's Own
Opinion Inclines to the Plan
Recommended by Secretary Shaw.

Washington, D. C., November 4.—From an authoritative source it is learned that the president is consulting with the individual members of his cabinet, who have had special experience in large financial questions, respecting the legislation to be recommended to congress. Of course, the secretary of the treasury has taken the leading part in the conferences, but it is also true that the president is not declining advice from any other promising quarter, and he has spent many hours recently in discussing this important subject, these conferences taking place at night as well in the daytime, and in fact, at any opportune moment.

Speedy Legislation Not Likely.
The discussion, so far, has served to bring about the conviction that it will be difficult to get any beneficial legislation of this character through congress quickly. That was one of the reasons why the president did not agree with the great interests, which recently appeared to him to call an extra session of congress immediately to deal with the finances of the country. Notwithstanding the present great stress to which the existing bank system, as well as the correlative systems, are being subjected by the currency stringency, it is feared that some time must elapse before the diverse views entertained by many people, bankers, merchants, law givers and college professors, can be fused into one practical and effective measure of relief. It was felt that so great was the task that little substantial gain would be afforded by gathering congress in special session a fortnight before the beginning of the regular session.

Shaw Plan Likely.
It may be stated that such study as the president and his constitutional advisers have been able to give to the multitude of projected currency bills has left them under the conviction that after all, none of the measures promising, or stands a better opportunity of securing the approval of congress than the particular measure referred to by the president in his last message to congress in dealing with this subject. That was the plan commonly ascribed to Secretary Shaw, which, the president stated, had, in it essentially, the features approved by many prominent bankers and business men. The president's description of the measure was brief, but comprehensive, for he said:

"According to this plan, national banks should be permitted to issue a specified proportion of their capital in notes of a given kind, the issue to be taxed at as high a rate as to drive the notes back when not wanted in legitimate trade. This plan would not permit the issue of currency to give banks additional profits, but to meet the emergency presented by times of stringency."

It is possible that in the four weeks intervening before the assembling of the sixtieth congress the president may conclude to adopt some other plan, or to amplify and work out the details of this means of obtaining an elastic currency, but if he remains of his present turn of mind, it is believed that he will feel obliged to recur to the original and simple Shaw plan.

After an interview with the president today, Representative Waller, of Brooklyn, a member of the house committee on banking and currency, gave it as his belief that much attention will be given to financial legislation at the coming session of congress. What the result would be or what the particular aim of the administration in this connection would be he was unable to state.

LITHOGRAPHERS' CASE UP.

Strauss Decides Foreigners Can Be Admitted Into This Country.

Washington, November 4.—A hearing of importance to the interests of organized labor and to the employing lithographers of the country was held today by Secretary Strauss, Assistant Secretary Murray and Commissioner of Immigration Sargent, of the department of commerce and labor.

Recently, William Voigt and seven other lithographers arrived at Ellis Island from Europe. They had entered into contracts to work for certain employing lithographers in New York. A protest against their admission was made by the American Federation of Labor and by the Lithograph Artists, Engravers and Designers' League of America on the ground that it would be a violation of the alien contract labor law. The case was appealed to Secretary Strauss and he heard both sides today. It was shown by the evidence, that acting on an opinion of Attorney General Bonaparte, in a previous case, in which it was held that the two lithographers were entitled to admission to America because there was a scarcity of that kind of labor in this country, the employing lithographers had sent an agent to Europe and made a contract with Voigt and his seven companions. This was claimed to be a clear violation of the alien contract labor law.

At the conclusion of the hearing Secretary Strauss decided that the men should be admitted.

HAS BEEN PURCHASED
BY U. S. STEEL TRUST

Sale of Great Southern Concern Consummated at Conference Held at the Home of J. Pierpont Morgan on Sunday.

New York, November 4.—The United States Steel Corporation has secured a controlling interest in the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company. The deal was concluded today, and is traceable to the conferences held at the home of J. P. Morgan Saturday and yesterday. It is understood that the price paid is a little above $85 a share. The holdings of a pool controlling some 70 per cent of the stock of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company were transferred in the sale. This sale cannot fail to do much to relieve the present financial stringency, as large amounts of the stock of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company are now held as collateral for loans by the local banks. The taking up of these loans by the new owners of the stock will add materially to the cash resources of the financial institutions.

In the absence of an official statement it is estimated that the Steel Corporation, acting through J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., has secured about $20,000,000 of the Tennessee Coal and Iron stock, at an outlay of some $17,000,000. This important deal has had the effect of strengthening the Trust Company of America, which had considerable of the stock as collateral, and will alleviate the financial situations of conditions that have tended to retard the return of confidence generally. The Tennessee Coal and Iron Company is a manufacturer of open hearth steel, and about two months ago received all the orders placed by the Harriman roads for rails needed by them in 1907 and 1908.

The Tennessee Coal and Iron pool was formed in Wall street about two and a half years ago. The total outstanding common stock of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company is $29,500,000. There is also $248,300 of preferred stock outstanding. The bonded debt consists of $14,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 6 per cent, due July, 1951.

CERTIFICATES ON COTTON
TO VALUE OF $100,000,000
REQUESTED OF CORTELYOU

Barnesville, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—President R. F. Duckworth, head of the Georgia division of the Farmers' Union, and a member of the legislative committee of the National Farmers' Union, has written the secretary of the treasury at Washington, D. C., praying that he be given the authority to issue certificates to the amount of $100,000,000, backed by cotton receipts given by bonded warehouses. This $100,000,000 to be guaranteed by twice that amount of cotton at present prices, and certificates to remain in force until August 15, 1908. This step is asked for to aid in the cotton holding movement, and President Duckworth believes that the plan is perfectly just and reasonable, and will materially aid the points in the effort to secure a fair price for its product.

The following is a copy of the letter by President Duckworth.

"November 4, 1907.
"Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.—My Dear Sir: As a member of the national legislative committee of the National Farmers' Union, I address you this letter in the behalf of over a million farmers of the south who are interested in the holding of cotton. The Atlanta bankers have issued what they term clearing house certificates to the amount of $2,000,000. They claim that these certificates are backed by 'gold edge security.' The Farmers' Union warehouses throughout the south. The majority of these warehouses are bonded, and I want to ask for the benefit of the farmers of the south, the permission of your department, to issue certificates backed by our cotton receipts, given by bonded warehouses, to the amount of $1,000,000.—This $100,000,000 to be guaranteed by twice that amount of cotton at present prices. The certificates to remain in circulation until August 15, 1908. We would greatly appreciate a reply from you on this matter at once.

Very respectfully yours,
R. F. DUCKWORTH,
"Member of the Legislative Committee of the National Farmers Union and President Georgia State Farmers' Union."

Unaccountable Deed of Mrs. Tate, of Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., November 4.—Mrs. Nora Tate shot and instantly killed her husband, Sam Tate, at their home near Boyls, a suburb, tonight. Mr. and Mrs. Tate, with their young son, were eating supper when Mrs. Tate suddenly from her chair and fired without warning the first bullet passing through her husband's eye. She refuses to make any statement as to the cause of the tragedy. She is held at the county jail.

HE FLED THE ASYLUM.
But Huntington Was Caught by the Keepers and Returned.

Versailles, France, Nov. 4.—Henry Huntington escaped today from the asylum where he was confined by climbing over a wall, but after a fierce struggle with the keepers, who caught him before he got away, he was returned to confinement. Huntington is the young American who last July shot and wounded his two brothers and two sisters at the bedside of his dying father in this city. A week ago he was pronounced by medical experts to be totally irresponsible. It now develops that he has acute mania. It took four men today to hold him down and put him in a straight jacket.

"Roustabouts" Refuse to Work.
Vicksburg, Miss., November 4.—The steamboat labor problem assumed an acute phase here today, when announcement was made that because of the refusal of the negro "roustabouts" to ship, the steamer Belle of the Bends, plying in the Vicksburg and Greenville trade, would be forced to temporarily go out of commission.

There is also great interest in the outcome of the contest between Tom Johnson and Burton at Cleveland, Ohio—Ten General State Elections.

Washington, D. C., November 4.—The elections, which take place in thirteen states tomorrow, may develop some indication of possible tendencies in the national campaign of next year. The fact that contests affecting the national campaign are promised in but a few instances, has a somewhat deterring influence, but that astute political forecasters expect to find some signs which will be significant if not determinative.

There are ten general state elections. The keenest interest felt centers in the local combats in New York City, Cleveland, San Francisco and Salt Lake City.

In New York, the struggle between Tammany and the fusion ticket is regarded of vast significance, and most of the wagers, few and small, at best, turn on the outcome in that contest.

Next to the New York battle in popular interest comes the municipal contest in Cleveland, Ohio. Both Mr. Burton and Mr. Johnson are personally known here. The former being a member, and the latter a former member of the house of representatives, and the interest is personal, as well as political.

San Francisco City receives attention because of the prominence of the Mormon question, and San Francisco, on account of recent occurrences in connection with the affairs of that city.

In Massachusetts, Maryland, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Kentucky and New Jersey governors will be chosen, and in all of them, except New Jersey, full state tickets.

In Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania and Nebraska the election will be for inferior state officers or for members of the legislature or county officers.

Tom Johnson Is Confident.

Cleveland, Ohio, November 4.—The night before election finds both sides claiming victory in Tuesday's contest, and both with seeming confidence. The campaign has been waged largely, if not exclusively, on the street railway franchise issue. Mayor Johnson, the democratic nominee, who is seeking a fourth term, demanding three-cent fare, and Congressman Theodore E. Burton, republican nominee, favoring immediate settlement of the street railway controversy on a basis of no less than seven tickets for 25 cents.

At Mayor Johnson's headquarters tonight his victory is claimed by 25,000. Republican leaders claim Burton's election by 5,000 to 8,000.

The Fight in Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., November 4.—Political workers are today receiving their final instructions and the concluding minor preparations are being made in the city and state for tomorrow's election. Leaders of both parties held to their estimates already given out as to the result. Chairman Standifer of the democratic state committee claims the election of Judge Crothers for governor by 12,000 majority and of the rest of the democratic state ticket and a majority of the members of the legislature.

Chairman Parran, of the Republican state committee, is equally assertive in his claims that the republicans will elect Galtier for governor by from 8,000 to 12,000 majority.

CASE INVOLVING $1.75
AND BUNCH OF BANANAS
GETS TO HIGHEST COURT

Washington, November 4.—Originating in a magistrate's court in Cleveland, Ohio, a case involving a claim for $1.75, the case of the Seaboard Air Line Railway v. Seegers Bros., found its way through the state circuit and supreme courts into the supreme court of the United States, and was there decided today in an opinion by Justice Brewer in favor of the Seegers. The money was demanded by Seegers on account of damages done a bunch of bananas shipped from Columbia, S. C., to the town of Mcbee, that state, in 1903, in accordance with a state law providing for damages in such cases. The company refused payment and suit thereupon was instituted.

Justice Brewer said:

"It is not an act leveled against corporations alone, but against all common carriers. The classification is based upon the nature of the business, that business being of a public character. Further, the matter to be adjudicated is one peculiarly within the knowledge of the carrier. It receives the goods and has them in its custody until the carriage is completed. It knows what it received and what it delivered. It knows what injury was done during the shipment and how it was done."

"While in this case the penalty may be large compared with the value of the shipment, yet it must be remembered that small shipments are the ones which especially need the protection of penal statutes like this. If a large amount is in controversy, the shipper can afford to litigate. When there is but the trifling of a dollar or two the shipper cannot well afford a lawsuit, and yet justice requires that he should be paid with reasonable promptness."

There was the greatest confusion in the meeting, in the midst of which Dr. Motre introduced resolutions censuring Dr. Stag for his language.

A short discussion President J. A. Dickinson ruled the whole thing out of order of Birmingham ministers who called.

HE SERVED YEARS IN PRISON

Pittsburg, Pa., November 4.—After having served half of a ten years' sentence in the Western penitentiary of Pennsylvania for a crime committed by another, Robert Simpson, who was convicted in connection with a safe robbery in the Irwin, Pa., postoffice, in Westmoreland county, about six years ago, will be given his freedom by the state pardon board. It has been discovered the robbery was committed by two men, both of whom are now dead.

HE GOES TO PRISON 4 YEARS

New York, November 4.—Rather than reveal the identity of the politician who induced him to falsely register in two election districts, Joseph Healey today accepted a sentence of not less than four years and six months, and not more than four years and eleven months in prison. Healey was told by Judge Rosalsky several days ago that if he would give the name of the man higher up he would save himself. He was sent to the Tombs for several days to have an opportunity to consider the offer, but when brought into court today, he declined to implicate any one in this trouble.

HAS BEEN REACHEDNew York Financiers Believe That Worst of the Situation Is Over and That From Now on
There Will Be Improvement.

New York, November 4.—The buoyancy of the stock market today reflected the ultimate decision of large bankers to support the two institutions, the Trust Company of America and the Lincoln Trust company, which have been subjected to runs during the last two weeks. The day was one of doubt and conflicting rumors, and the fact that it passed without any adverse development is an evidence that the worst of the situation is probably over.

At a late hour this morning, an agreement was reached, largely through the influence of Mr. Morgan, by which the trust companies will cooperate in the future for their mutual protection and the directors will lend the assistance of their personal fortunes to meet immediate necessities. The assets of the two threatened companies were carefully gone over by experts on Saturday and Sunday, and both of them were found to be solvent, with a considerable surplus after paying all claims and providing for the capital stock. Under these circumstances it was thought advisable by the big men to support the two institutions, which would adhere to thoroughly conservative methods and direction in the future.

Turn of the Crisis.
The achievement of these results today, with the steady upward movement of the stock market until near the close, is believed to mark the turn of the crisis. The loss of $50,000,000 in cash by the clearing house banks according to their Saturday statement in spite of the $30,000,000 which had been poured into their tills during the week from the treasury, was expected to have a disturbing effect. It was a worse showing than will be possible again in the face of heavy arrivals of gold. Gold engagements since the beginning of the present movement now amount to $32,000,000, which would more than bridge the loss in surplus reserve last week. The disturbances, which are sweeping over the exchange market and arousing concern in foreign markets were indicated today by the rise in foreign exchange in considerably above the point at which gold could profitably be imported.

The fact that it is still coming this way indicates the determination of the New York bankers to strengthen their position, even at a loss. The high rate for bills was caused by the demand for exchange to cover the arrivals of gold.

Cotton Bills Not Fully Available.
The cotton bills are not yet available because shipments are slow and the bills themselves are subjected to considerable scrutiny before they are taken. The fact that the New York market bid a sufficient premium for gold to absorb about $2,000,000 from the open market and to withdraw an additional amount of $2,400,000 from the Bank of England indicated that the increase in the discount rate of the Bank of England made at a special meeting today before the opening of the New York market from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent. was not sufficient to check the gold movement. Hence, arose much talk in London that the rate would be advanced to 7 per cent at the regular meeting of the board of governors on Thursday. This will be the highest rate attained for many years, but with $32,000,000 in gold already on the way to New York or engaged for shipment, even a higher rate than the Bank of England has fixed would probably not injure materially American credit. It is still believed that the Bank of France would aid the Bank of England by loans on sterling bills at Paris if the situation required it.

National Banking Situation Sound.
Reports from Washington indicate that the national banking situation throughout the country is sound and the efforts of the comptroller of the currency to get notes into circulation are meeting considerable success. The calls for bank circulation are so numerous that the mail can hardly be handled promptly by the clerks in the office of the comptroller. Some of the amounts applied for are small, but they are scattered all over the country, and it is believed will aid materially in relieving local pressure. The price of United States bonds was firmer today than for some time, showing an increase in several classes of a half of one per cent, and indicating that the banks were in the market as purchasers.

The fact that tomorrow—election day—is a legal holiday in New York will afford time for further perfecting plans for mutual support which were well under way today.

It was stated that the elevator, boats and warehouses at Buffalo have 3,600,000 bushels of grain and 500 car loads of merchandise and manufactured goods, very largely for export, against which drafts for gold could be drawn the moment it is loaded on vessels that are waiting at Atlantic ports for cargoes.

Ohio Bank Suspends.
Lectonia, Ohio, November 4.—The First National Bank here failed to open its doors today. A notice posted on the door states that the concern will liquidate its liabilities. C. N. Schneck, of Cleveland, Ohio, is president of the bank.

Illinois Bank Suspends.
Aurora, Ill., November 4.—Owing to the money stringency, the Aurora National Bank failed to open its doors today. The bank was organized in 1883 with capital stock of $50,000 and its deposits aggregated $165,000. No statement has yet been made of the liabilities.

Miners Strike for Cash.
Danville, Ill., November 4.—Four thousand miners employed in the coal mines at Kellyville, Steelton and Westville, towns a few miles south of Danville, are practically on strike as a result of the financial troubles. Last Thursday night the miners were notified that on next Thursday, the time for the regular payday, they would be paid in checks instead of currency, the usual way. Friday only a portion of the men were at work and Saturday the entire 4,000 failed to show up and a mass meeting of the men was called for Saturday afternoon. The men decided not to go to work today until assured that they would be paid in cash, and the mines are idle. It is said that the strike will entail serious results if it is continued for any length of time.

Three Kansas Banks Close.
Topeka, Kas., November 4.—Bank Commissioner J. W. Royce announced today that three Kansas banks had been forced to close their doors owing to the failure of the Bankers' Trust company of Kansas City, Mo., on October 28. The banks are the Coyville State bank, of Garfield, and the Citizens' State bank of Mulberry, all small institutions. They had deposits with the Bankers' Trust company. Receivers will be appointed at once.

FAIRYLAND IS SHOWN TO ATLANTA AUDIENCE

By SIDNEY ORMOND.

Do you believe in fairies? Perhaps not. But, no matter how roughly you may have rubbed up against life's realities, there is one thing you are bound to believe in: The purity and innocence and fabulous faith of childhood. And believing in these things, you are sure to have an abiding sympathy with the faith of childhood which makes it a "Never, Never Land" of ineffable delight.

For this reason, no matter how many years distant your footsteps may have strayed from "Never, Never Land," no matter how your youthful illusions may have been shattered and blown as dust before the winds, you will delight in "Peter Pan," that elusive little boy who scorned to grow up and become president or do other equally futile things, but determined to remain a boy always and always; to live with the fairies; to consort with Indians, to fight pirates and to do the other things possible only to childhood. You will not only delight in the play, an exquisitely conceived and daintily executed production, you will do more. There will be times when you will find your willing footsteps being led surely backward to the land which you may not enter. There will be times when you will feel an indefinable glow of memory stealing over you—a memory which grips the heart strings as you recall your vanished childhood; a memory which is so subtle in its commingling of pleasure and pain that a mist of tears steals over your eyes as a laugh leaps to your lips. You will feel a longing to be as Peter Pan and you will sympathize with his refusal to surrender to the temptation of Wendy when she bids him leave his fairies and his woodland home, people with its magical adventures at every turn.

"Who are you, Pan?"
"I'm young, eternal youth; I'm the sun rising;
I'm poets singing; I'm the new world;
I'm a little bird that has broken out of the egg;
"I'm joy, joy, joy!"

That fittingly describes Peter Pan—describes him as only Barrie could. Small wonder, then, the play has an irresistible appeal to youth and old alike. Children will enjoy it for obvious reasons. But it is by no means uncertain that for maturity, capable of understanding its thinly veiled philosophy, it holds the greatest measure of charm.

To describe the play would be a difficult task; almost as difficult as to place a definite finger on the elements of Maude Adams' delightful art, which makes her an unique figure on the American stage. Play and actress seem as if made the one for the other.

There is a certain similarity in the elusive atmosphere of "Peter Pan" and the baffling qualities of Miss Adams' acting, which charms, but refuses to submit to a cold description or critical analysis. No one could do Peter Pan but she. Last night she held the largest and most fashionable audience of the year literally enthralled. From the moment this dainty, elfish little creature stepped on the stage she won all hearts. Physically as well as temperamentally she possesses every qualification for the role. It is, beyond doubt, her greatest creation, and it would be strange indeed if the public allowed her to forsake the piece in which she has found her true home.

When, in the third act, as Tinker Bell is about to die, after drinking the poison, she steps before the footlights and says in an appealing voice: "Do you believe in fairies? Oh! Say do you believe in fairies?" The audience applauds in a manner to leave little doubt that, for the time at least, many do believe in fairies.

But play and star shared honors with members of the company, many of whom were excellent. Mildred Morris, as Wendy; Ernest Lawford, as James Hook; Virginia Smith, as Lisa; were especially clever.

The coming of Miss Adams to Atlanta for a series of five performances marks a new era in local theatrical circles, an experiment the wisdom of which is amply justified by the splendid audience of last night. On the success of her engagement depends future like ventures.

Miss Adams will play tonight, Wednesday night and matinee and Thursday night. No one can well afford to miss seeing her.

At the Bijou.
For Indians (made of paint, feathers, whistles and kites), of greasers, chinks and imitation bad men, "Little Buffalo, King of the Wild West," takes the panache from all of the Bijou imitations—soul-stirring dramas, Cooper's Leatherstocking and Charles King.

The story as portrayed by the author brings to the English the same feeling of awe and a fortune, always present in the current cheap stories, with all the attendant complications of robbery, abduction and gun play, excepting only the lynching feature, everything ending well with the whole company on the stage and every one in the audience leaving before the benediction was pronounced.

From the opening scene, with its Stomach Bears, rattlesnakes, prairie dogs and rattlesnakes to the close, it is a veritable and absorbing interest as a melodrama and will doubtless play to crowded houses during its week stand.

At the Orpheum.
Vaudeville as usual at the Orpheum. And unusually good vaudeville at that. Eight good, bright acts that moved off with a vim and vigorously that pleased the assembly wonderfully well.

Then, too, "was a bill that varied—and the fellow that said 'Variety is the spice of life' isn't far wrong if the life injected into the comedians last evening is any criterion of existence."

The entertainment was launched by the Zarill Brothers, European equilibrist and their performance is good, very good—something of a novelty in the show business. Billed as No. 3, Eddie Browning broke the ice and inquired "Won't You Come and Splash With Me?" among numerous other imitations. She looked when she tried to do the original Eddie. For and under the "Why They Call Her a Gibson Girl." Her act is vivacious enough to drive away all thought of life's vicissitudes, at least for the time being.

Next was scheduled the Banks-Brazzale duo in "The Daintiest of Musical Acts." Their performance is worth while. They are good musicians, and, furthermore, they have taken down the act.

Number 5 saw John Dunn-Wilhelmina Francis & Co. through their comedy sketch, "The Hold-up." Dunn and hold-up go well together and their act moved off smoothly. Norton and Russell have a neat, quick-change act. The crowd liked it fine. Miss Russell and Mr. Norton deserve credit for their splendid work. Barry and Wolford were laughably funny in their stunt entitled "Eclectic Comedy Couple." The eccentricity, the comedy and the couple are all there. The last act before the motion pictures was Russell and Russell, who with their trained dog, March, their talking dog, was good. The little canine doped out mathematical sums like an adding machine. A very full house saw the bill clear through in spite of the fact that the star engagement of the season was on at the Grand.

The regular matinees and every night this schedule will greet all comers.

Divorcements.
"Divorcements," the piece in which Grace George has made such an unusual success, both in London and this country, and in which she will be seen at the Grand Friday night and Saturday matinee, has had a varied career in France, England and the United States.

It was first presented in New York at Abbey's Park theater on March 14, 1882, when Alice Dunning Lingard appeared as Cyprine. In May of the same year Grace's French Opera Company, at St. Jean's Fifth Avenue theater, gave the comedy with Paola Marie in the leading role.

Since then the piece has been played by Madam Judice at Walden's in 1885; by Madam Jekes at the Star in 1886; by Frau Hedwig Niemann-Raabe at the same house in 1887; by Jeanne at Abbey's in 1889; by Duse at the Fifth Avenue in 1893; by Mrs. Fiske at the same house first on May 7, 1897 by Emily Bancroft, under the title of "A Divorce Cure," at the Murray Hill in March, 1897; by Mrs. Fiske again in 1899 at the Fifth Avenue theater and later at the Manhattan and by many less well-known actresses in English, French and German. On Saturday night Miss George will be seen in "Sylvia of the Letters."

The Chorus Lady.
The cast which will support Rose Stahl, who comes to the Grand soon in James Forbes' comedy, "The Chorus Lady," will be identically the same as has appeared with her in New York and Chicago for the past twelve months, and is as follows: Wilfred Lucas, Eva Dennison, Frances Byrne, Alice Leigh, Gless Shine, Maude Knowlton, Thomas McGuire, Margaret Wheeler, Bert Colton, Carolyn Green, John Adams, Amy Lesser, Susan Lawrence, Claire Lane, Amy Lee, Helen Hilton and Annie Ives.

YOUNG WOMAN KILLS GEORGIAN

James Clonth Shot by Mrs. Allen, of Birmingham, in Self Defense.

Birmingham, Ala., November 4.—Mrs. Edith Allen, young woman who runs a boarding house at Avondale, a suburb of Birmingham, shot and instantly killed James Clonth, of Dallas, Tex., tonight. She claims he came to the house drunk and attacked her, and that she acted in self-defense. She fired four times, one bullet piercing the man's heart.

TROOPS SENT TO AWE UTES

More Soldiers Ordered to Proceed to Scene of Trouble.

Omaha, Neb., November 4.—Orders were received at army headquarters in Omaha to dispatch the remaining two squadrons of the Second United States cavalry, composed of eight companies, to Thunder Butte, S. D., at the earliest possible moment. The command left for Des Moines last night. Company M, Sixteenth infantry, under command of Captain Harry F. Dalton, will leave tomorrow or Wednesday for Gettysburg, South Dakota, to take charge of the base of supplies which has been established for the operations against the Ute Indians should they make any troublesome overtures.

Colonel Frank West, of the Second cavalry, will be placed in command of the expedition on arrival at Thunder Butte. Major Sibley and the first squadron of four companies of the Second cavalry are now at Thunder Butte.

It is not known at army headquarters why additional troops have been sent to the Cheyenne river reservation, but it is thought the idea is to prevent any portion of the Sioux tribe from making common cause with the Utes in their revolt against authority.

THOUGHT GIRL A BURGLAR.

Negro Minister Shoots Negro Girl Who Was Trying to Get Into the House.

Rev. J. A. Martin, a negro minister, pastor of the Mitchell street Methodist Episcopal church, last night surrendered to police authorities and was placed in a cell, charged with shooting, possibly fatally, Isabella Morris, a negro girl, who lives in the house in which the minister at 229 West Mitchell street.

He says that the girl tried to get into the house by opening the door about 11:30 o'clock and then tried to open his window, and, being frightened, he picked up an old pistol which had not been used for eighteen years and fired at her. Her condition is critical.

GEN. WILLIAM OATES ILL.

Prominent Man of Alabama Confined from Severe Cold.

Montgomery, Ala., November 4.—(Special.) General William C. Oates, long time congressman and one time governor of Alabama, a colonel in the Confederate army and a brigadier general for Uncle Sam in the late unpleasantness with Spain, is ill at his home in this city. He has been confined to his room since a severe cold, which is now yielding to treatment.

Charles P. Jones, brother of Judge Thomas G. Jones and assistant district attorney of Louisville and Nashville railroad, said today in Colorado Springs, Colo. that he was suffering from tuberculosis, which yielded to the climate and treatment and from which he is well recovered. However, he has a kidney affection that is regarded as serious. Judge Jones will likely go to his bedside.

TRANSFER CHARGES CUT.

Alabama Railroad Commission Reduces Rate from 50 to 30 Cents.

Montgomery, Ala., November 4.—(Special.) At the meeting of the Alabama railroad commission yesterday an order was issued cutting down the charge of transfer of passengers from one depot to the other at Birmingham from 50 cents to 30 cents, allowing 150 pounds of baggage to each ticket. The old rate on tickets costing 50 or less was 25 cents. The company was allowed to make this 30 cents, the commission feeling that there should be no discrimination. The Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Company, it was shown in the testimony, would have transferred for 5 cents per passenger and not over 50 cents for baggage. Another transfer company would have made a flat charge of 25 cents.

Tillman on Financial Situation.

Kansas City, Mo., November 4.—In an interview here tonight, United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, of South Carolina, said:

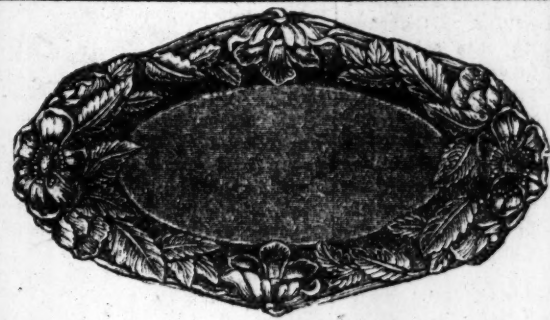

"The effort to call an extraordinary session of congress for currency reform is being made to give the country a currency reform as the banking interests wish. What we need is not currency reform as the banks want it, but enforcement of the laws we now have against wild-cat banking and the punishment of those who have broken them."

WOMAN KILLED

Throat of the Victim Was Cut

MONEY SEWED IN HER DRESS

Murderer Ripped the Woman's Dress
With a Knife in Order to Secure the Money—There Is No Clue to the Murderer.

Philadelphia, November 4.—Marina Carmella Mongoluzzo, an aged Italian woman, was murdered and robbed of $700, the savings of herself and husband, while she was at work today in a shed in the rear of her home in South-west Philadelphia. The woman's husband, Natta Mongoluzzo, led her at the wash tub when he went to work this morning, and when he returned home he found her lying in the shed with her throat cut from ear to ear. Six hundred dollars, which the couple had saved was sewn in the woman's dress, and nearly $100 additional was in her purse. When Mrs. Mongoluzzo's body was found the pocket containing the money had been cut from her dress, and the purse was gone. The couple lived in an Italian boarding house, but had the use of a shed in the rear of the place. The police are at sea in the case, though they believe some one familiar with the couple's habits committed the murder. A dozen boarders in the house, together with the husband, were taken into custody by the police for examination.

Cotton Difficult to Get.

New Orleans, La., November 4.—Difficult in procuring cotton in the interior had the effect today of producing much higher spot markets at New Orleans and other points. A disposition on the part of planters to hold their cotton for cash payments rather than accept certified checks, has brought about this condition and promises to prove a factor in retarding the movement of cotton abroad unless currency for the purchase of the interior cotton is supplied.

OCEAN STEAMER
GOES TO BOTTOM

City of Birmingham Sinks in Boston Harbor.

MEMBERS OF CREW SAVED

Vessel Struck a Ledge, and on Backing Off Piled With Water and Went Down—Arrangements Made for Raising the Steamer.

Boston, November 4.—The steamer City of Birmingham, of the Ocean Steamship Company, struck a ledge in the harbor early today while bound out to Savannah and sank in ten fathoms of water, about two miles below her dock. The crew escaped. The steamer having made a special trip north, with a cargo of cotton, started about 1:30 a. m. for the south. At a slight bend, where the channel enters what is known as the middle ground, the City of Birmingham hit an obstruction. The vessel backed off into deep water; immediately the engine room was flooded and fifteen minutes after striking the boat sank. The crew had no difficulty in getting off in the steamer's boats and rowing the two miles back to the dock. The City of Birmingham lies with its upper deck above water, about half a mile from the lower end of Castle Island. Arrangements have been begun for raising the steamer. The City of Birmingham was built at Chester, Pa., in 1888 and has been in the southern cotton trade between Savannah and this city for several years. The steamer was commanded by Captain Hammond and is 2,352 net tons burden and is 210 feet length. The boat has passenger accommodations, but none were on the vessel today. Agents for the line expressed confidence today that the steamer could be saved.

The Northwest Wants Government Money.

Grand Forks, N. Dak., November 4.—Senator Hansbrough sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt today: "Fully 150,000 bushels of grain are now ready to be marketed in the two Dakotas and Minnesota and there is no money with which to do it. The necessity of the northwest are, therefore, much greater than in any other section of the country, demanding the fullest consideration at the hands of the treasury department."

Ten million dollars placed in Twin City banks would raise the embargo and start grain shipments to Europe. This would relieve the financial stress in the east much quicker than a deposit of treasury funds in New York.

Prepare for Primary.

Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—The city executive committee started the purging of the list of registered voters for the municipal primary at the first meeting tonight. Large numbers of those against whom small tax areas are lodged have already removed the causes and are free but the committee has a large amount of work to do, and there will be three sessions every night until the matter has been disposed of. Persons lodging the complaints have appeared before the committee in the effort to sustain them, and the fight of the one side against the other will be kept up until the list has been entirely cleared. Considerable feeling has been manifested and the final outcome of the matter has yet to be seen. There is political unrest far beyond the usual stages in such an election, and the proceedings before the executive committee promise anything but love-making among citizens.

Facing Great Object Lesson.

"We are face to face with a great object lesson which will result in substantial good to the country in general and to the banks in particular."

"Congressmen are now at home and they will profit by the experience of their constituents and when they assemble next month in regular session, they will take up the Fowler bill with greater interest and more wisdom than they take it down at the close of the last session."

Creditors Filled Petition.

Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—Creditors of W. J. Braswell, general merchant at Fort Valley, Ga., filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against him in the United States court here this morning. There were no schedules filed, but the stock of merchandise is worth over $10,000 and the business was a considerable one. The matter has gone into the court and will be referred for adjudication.

Roosevelt Goes to Vote.

Washington, D. C., November 4.—President Roosevelt left here tonight over the Pennsylvania railroad for Oyster Bay, where, tomorrow, he will cast his vote.

Financiers and Congressmen
Opposed to Such Move.

REGULAR SESSION IS NEAR

And It Would Only Unsettle Things to Call Extra Session—Harriman Says Quiet Is Needed, and Opportunity for Things to Get Normal.

New York, November 4.—Financiers of New York hold opposing views regarding the suggestion that President Roosevelt call an extra session of congress at once to provide for currency reform. Half a dozen members of congress, men prominent in the house, oppose it. The financiers who oppose a special session of congress generally favor currency reform, but they hold that the regular session of congress is so near that the subject can be considered then. Leslie M. Shaw, president of the Carnegie Trust Company, and former secretary of the treasury, is one of those who favors immediate action. He says if congress had met last winter the crisis through which we are now passing would not have happened. "Wise legislation," he said, "cannot be passed too quickly."

Harriman Opposes.

E. H. Harriman, James Stillman and Henry Clews are against the idea. Mr. Harriman said: "No extra session can help existing conditions. What is needed is quiet and the opportunity for things to become normal."

Powers Opposes Extra Session.

Louisville, Ky., November 4.—Colonel J. D. Powers, president of the American Bankers' Association, and a prominent local financier, in reply to many letters and telegrams from all parts of the United States regarding his attitude toward an extra session of congress to consider the financial situation, today made the following statement: "I have declined to join in the request to the president to call an extra session of congress because I would not ask the president to do a thing which I would not do if I considered myself. I believe it would be a great mistake to call an extra session of congress at this time. There is no longer any emergency. The congressmen are not the best advisers in times like the present. The government, through its secretary of the treasury, has done all that is necessary to aid and assist courageous, cool-headed and wise financiers to quiet and allay the agitation and unrest growing out of conditions that sooner or later were bound to produce that which has been precipitated by over-speculation in 'specious values.'"

Both Sides Claim New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., November 4.—The close of the gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey finds the managers of the two leading political parties issuing statements that their respective candidates will surely be elected. Democratic Chairman Hudson says that reports from his lieutenants indicate that Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the democratic candidate, will carry the state by about 7,500, while State Chairman Murphy, of the republican party, feels sure that J. Franklin Fort will be elected by a majority of about 21,000.

Intense Interest in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., November 4.—Although the campaign for full state, county and city tickets closed Saturday night with speeches at many points, the managers for the various candidates were actively at work today in making final preparations for getting out a full vote. Interest in tomorrow's election is intense. Not only throughout the state, but in Louisville, where a whirlwind campaign has been waged between Owen Tyler, democrat, and James E. Grinstead, republican for mayor in this city, the registration of voters was the largest ever recorded.

No Interest in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., November 4.—Practically no interest is expressed in tomorrow's election for governor and other state officials. Inasmuch as up to today no unusual event has occurred to disturb political conditions, the result of the election is not only a foregone conclusion, but devoid of features.

Light Vote Predicted in New York.

New York, November 4.—A spiritless campaign ended today with a light vote and quiet day predicted at the polls tomorrow.

A so-called "anti-Tammany" campaign carried forward in New York county by a fusion of republican and independence league managers afforded what little life the local political situation has shown. Interest has centered in the fight for sheriff of New York county, and both sides are confidently predicting victory. The fusion candidate is Maximilian F. Immen, who has acted as campaign manager for William R. Heast during the past two years. The democratic candidate for sheriff is Thomas Foley, who has long been identified with Tammany hall.

Cashier Had Been Under a Severe
Nervous Strain for Several Days, Fearing There Would Be Run on the Bank.

Huntsville, Ala., November 4.—Yielding to the strain under which he has labored for the past ten days, James R. Boyd, cashier of the Huntsville Bank and Trust Company, killed himself in the dining room at his home this morning, firing a bullet through his brain. He was dead when his wife reached him.

Intimate friends of the dead man say that he labored under high nervous strain for several days and feared that a run would be made on his bank and that there would not be enough money to weather the storm. Boyd's suicide caused a sensation in financial circles, and an examination of his books proved everything to be all right. Boyd was president of the Huntsville city council.

His home has been crowded ever since the tragedy with friends. Just after breakfast Mr. Boyd told his wife that he was going into the dining room for a drink of water. He seemed at himself and did not attract her attention. In a few minutes she heard a shot and ran into the room. He was lying on the floor with a gaping hole from a 38 caliber revolver in his head. He never spoke after the shot or seemed to know what was going on. There is no trouble with the banks as a result of the suicide. There have been ten deposits to one withdrawal all day. Mr. Boyd left a wife and one child. He carried $50,000 insurance on his life.

THIRTEEN STATES
VOTING TODAY

Little to do in the way of campaign work today at the state headquarters of the several parties, the campaign having closed Saturday night.

There is little interest in the election of a state treasurer, the only state office to be filled. The republicans say John O. Sheets will win by more than 100,000 plurality, while the democratic managers say they believe John H. Hamman, their candidate, will be elected.

The independent republicans in Philadelphia are making some show of fight against the $10,000,000 loan proposition, but it is practically certain the vote of the city will be in favor of the loan.

Both Sides Claim New Jersey. Trenton, N. J., November 4.—The close of the gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey finds the managers of the two leading political parties issuing statements that their respective candidates will surely be elected. Democratic Chairman Hudson says that reports from his lieutenants indicate that Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the democratic candidate, will carry the state by about 7,500, while State Chairman Murphy, of the republican party, feels sure that J. Franklin Fort will be elected by a majority of about 21,000.

Notwithstanding the efforts of party managers to eliminate the liquor question, it has loomed up strong in many sections. Fort has endorsed the present law while Katzenbach has promised he will be guided by the action of the legislature.

Intense Interest in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., November 4.—Although the campaign for full state, county and city tickets closed Saturday night with speeches at many points, the managers for the various candidates were actively at work today in making final preparations for getting out a full vote. WAR OVER TARIFF
WILL BE WAGED

France and United States to Be the Principals.

NO AGREEMENT IS LIKELY

Negotiations Opened Last Summer
Have Been Barren of Results, and There Seems to Be No Escape From a
Trade Contest.

Paris, November 4.—The present indications point to an early inauguration of a tariff war between France and the United States. The negotiations opened last summer for an arrangement on a basis giving France the benefit of a twenty per cent reduction in wines in return for preferential rates upon a list of about one hundred articles, including shoes, tools, machinery, etc., have thus far been barren of results, and the action of the French government Saturday in virtually promising not to conclude any further commercial arrangements until parliament passes upon the proposed revision of the tariff of 1892, seems to preclude any chance of agreement.

It is true that last week, before the government made its promise, a reluctant assent was given to an extension of the decree granting the minimum rates to Porto Rico coffee until December 1. While the extension nominally keeps the issue open for another month it is practically certain that nothing will be accomplished unless the United States radically changes its attitude, France having all along regarded the concessions asked of her as being utterly disproportionate to what was offered. If the Porto Rican coffee decree is withdrawn December 1, as now appears likely, the United States is expected to retaliate, and a tariff war with then be on.

tion of two associate judges of the court of appeals, the republicans and democrats have united upon the same candidate, Edward T. Bartlett and Willard Bartlett, while the independence league has its own candidates in the field.

William Leary, the new state superintendent of elections here, has declared he has found many cases of fraudulent registration in this year's lists and says many arrests will be made tomorrow if the alleged "boaters" attempt to vote.

Heavy Vote Probable in Ohio.

Cincinnati, Ohio, November 4.—With a promise of good weather and much interest in the various municipal elections throughout Ohio tomorrow, indications are for a very full vote. Although municipal officers only are to be voted for there has not been an entire absence of national issues in the discussions, Taft and Foraker differences among the republicans in several instances resulting in discussion of national measures. Local government has been the ground of most of the contests, which were only partially partisan. Owing to the prominence of the two candidates the Cleveland campaign is of most general interest, but Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo, Dayton and other cities have contests of more than ordinary interest.

Campaign in the Philippines.

Manila, November 4.—Registration for the general election is the greatest in the history of the Philippines. It is expected that fully two hundred thousand voters will go to the polls and cast their votes. Governors, members of the provisional boards and municipal officers will be elected. The campaign has been very quiet.

Liquor Issue in Delaware.

Dover, Del., November 4.—Delaware tomorrow will vote on the liquor question. The campaign just closed has been one of the most interesting in the history of the state and has been devoid of party politics. The legislature of last winter passed a bill conferring upon voters the privilege of determining whether liquor should be sold or manufactured in the districts of the state. If a majority of the voters in any one district decide that there shall be "no license," then the saloons in that district must go out of business.

The state will vote on the liquor question only, there being no municipal, county or state tickets in the way.

Brecker for National Secretary.

Paris, November 4.—Charles H. Brecker, secretary of the American chamber of commerce, has accepted the secretaryship of the National Association of Manufacturers of the United States. He will take up his new duties December 1.

SPORTS Football Still Holds the Spot Light

Edited by
Alex LynnFOUR BIG TEAMS
NEED NEW DATESGeorgia and Tech Should Play on Thanksgiving.

Change Would Permit Auburn and Alabama to Play for State Championship on Big Day, and Tech and Georgia to Do Likewise.

The Birmingham Age-Herald is the first to offer a good suggestion, one that will meet with favor with the football followers of Georgia and Alabama: that instead of the usual Tech-Clemson and Georgia-Auburn games on Thanksgiving Day, the Yellow Jackets should have their one big game with Georgia, and Auburn should play the University of Alabama, thus bringing the greatest games of the two states on the greatest of football days.

While it is the business of Georgia, Auburn, Tech and Clemson whom they play on Thanksgiving, still the change would be a decided improvement over the present arrangement. Undoubtedly the Tech-Auburn battle is the warmest of the two teams have on their schedules, as it is for the championship of the state, and then there is the heavy rivalry between the two to help out.

All over the country the many football teams have their big games of the season on the last day thereof and it seems but right that Tech and Georgia should switch their clash until Thanksgiving. Then it is that the teams are fitted from having worked through the whole of the season and having derived all the benefits of long coaching and practice. A much better article of football is put up on Thanksgiving, or should be, than at any time during the season, and then the two rival eleven could be seen at their best. It is a sure thing that the Thanksgiving games draw the largest crowds of the season, and with Tech and Georgia playing in Atlanta on Thanksgiving, all attendance records would be smashed or many drop their bets.

Change Was Unsatisfactory.

As for the Georgia-Auburn affair, it got along fairly well when the games were pulled off in Atlanta, much interest and heavy patronage being two of the features. But it was not so with the Tech game, which was pulled off in Macon. The game was all right and it is not her fault, but the removing of the game out of a great football belt, as it were, is to be blamed. The attendance has never come up to what it was in the old days, and it seems that the interest in the fray has dropped considerably.

Then, again, Mercer who is rapidly forging to the front, is knocked out of a Thanksgiving game in her home town. That Georgia and Auburn should butt in on the Baptists' hardly seems fair.

The old-time rivalry between the teams also seems to have slumbered down and now the game is among the minor issues of the season; anyway, it is not strong enough to be withheld until Thanksgiving.

Let Georgia and Auburn play on an earlier date and Tech and Clemson do likewise, and there would be no kick coming anywhere.

It is understood that the agreement between Georgia and Auburn for the Thanksgiving game comes to an end this year and Georgia would do well to arrange a contract for a short time that would expire at the time Tech's with Clemson terminated. The two teams should get together on the proposition, and within a reasonably short time be serving the patrons with the big game on Thanksgiving Day.

Suggestion is timely.

Georgia heretofore has made lengthy agreements with the Alabama people and the change advocated by Mr. Roberts of the Age-Herald is most opportune, coming as it does, when the old contract expires. Here are the views advanced by an Atlanta sportsman on the subject of the proposed change.

"Alabama should meet Auburn, hereafter, on Thanksgiving Day, and Georgia and Tech on that day should come to blows."

"Heretofore, this schedule has been impossible on account of an agreement between the University of Georgia and Auburn to meet every year, for a long period, on Thanksgiving. This year, however, the understanding is, that the agreement is terminated. Therefore, Alabama and Auburn, and Tech and Georgia should form an agreement to meet each other on Turkey day. Alabama then could play Tennessee on November 16, and Auburn could meet Georgia on November 16."

This arrangement is desirable to every alumni of each of the four institutions, and has been advocated by sporting writers for years. The greatest game in Alabama is between the University and Auburn, and the greatest game in Georgia is between the University of that state and the Tech. Therefore, these games should be played on Thanksgiving, the last of the football season. On this day, the great rivals of the east meet, notably, the Army and the Navy, and the state teams of the south should follow suit. The idea is a good one, everybody admits, and should be realized.

The only fault that can be found with the story is that it is stated the Army and Navy play on Thanksgiving when in truth these eleven get together on the following Saturday as has been the case for years. But, of course, this was only an oversight.

ROOF GARDEN BASEBALL
NEXT ON THE PROGRAM

Norris L. O'Neill, president of the Western Baseball League, believed that the time is coming when the game will be played from the roof of houses. He discussed the subject on a visit to his brother here. He said: "I am negotiating now with Frank Beach, of California, on this project, and the new scheme may have a try-out in San Francisco. Ground out that way is too valuable to be used for baseball parks, and business men haven't the time to spend on cars riding to the suburbs to see a game. By having the grounds on top of a block or two of houses, with great stairways and elevators, it would be an easy matter to handle the crowds."

Return from Norfolk and Spent Day Here.

The Sewanee football team spent yesterday en route to Sewanee from Norfolk, where the Tigers defeated the strong Virginia eleven Saturday. The bunch was living high in a special car which was anchored in the union depot from early morning until night, when they departed from the city. The stop here was accidental, a missed connection being responsible for the lengthy visit in Atlanta.

Members of the team-state that they were given a rough deal by the Virginians, who slugged and used other untoward methods in an attempt to stop the victorious "Tigers." In fact, complaints of the treatment given the team in Norfolk were numerous.

The team expressed itself as having a hunch that Vanderbilt would be given a warm reception on Thanksgiving day and that perhaps the Tigers would take the game, the win over Virginia having run the hopes of the squad up to the overflowing point.

Sewanee, too, is pretty confident of handling it to Tech Saturday.

W. M. Wilson, an Atlanta boy, who is playing sub end for the Tigers, was with the team.

RADICAL CHANGE MADE IN ORMOND AUTO MEET

Mile and Two-Mile Sprints Will Be Subordinated to Two Big Races.

New York, November 4.—A radical change is to be made in the program for the coming Ormond Beach meet in Florida and the mile or two-mile record sprints will be more or less subordinated to two big races, one for the racing cars that were built for the abandoned Vanderbilt cup race and the other for strictly stock cars. The exact distances for these two races have not been decided upon.

The race for the stock cars will be 200 to 250 miles. Land loops will be constructed at both ends of the beach course, so that the turns can be made in both a fast and safe manner.

The Election in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., November 4.—Virginia elects tomorrow county officers and members of the state senate and house of delegates. The indications are that the vote will be light.

FOR HITTER GEO. STONE

George Stone, who worried the St. Louis Browns by holding out last season, came to terms early for 1908. He has already signed a Brown contract.

He said the following on the subject: "My contract for 1908 has been signed, and I will be among the first of McAlle's players to report. I don't want to discuss my private affairs, but I'll say in justice to myself that I only took care of my own interests when I decided to accept the offer that was made to me last spring. I am grateful to the St. Louis public for the many expressions of good will I have received since I joined the Browns. I was in poor form in the early part of the season. I surely tried as hard during my batting slump as I ever did in my professional career, but I could not negotiate the pitching. I may do no better next year, but you can rely on it that it will not be from lack of effort and earnestness, if I do not finish with a better batting record."

SQUIRES NOW SIZZLING IN HOT SPRINGS STEAM

"Bill" Squires, the Australian fighter, who failed to make good against the American fighters, is pleading for another chance. He is now in Hot Springs, where he is recovering from an attack of muscular rheumatism.

It is on this rheumatism that Squires places the blame for his defeats here. He says he has the sample which he took from the attack, and that it is some of the good fighters of this region if he regains his punch. The loss of the punch he places on the crippling rheumatism.

AUBURN WON
FROM CLEMSONAlabama Bunch Outplayed
South Carolina Team on Every Hand.

Auburn, Ala., November 4.—(Special.) Auburn defeated the Clemson bunch this afternoon by the score 12 to 0.

In the toss up Capt. McClure won, and chose to defend the western goal. Clemson kicked to Patterson, who returned it 15 yards. Auburn made a touchdown, rushing through Clemson's center until Hughes carried the ball over. Reynolds kicked goal. Score at end of half was 6 to 0.

In the second instance, after several kicks and exchanges of time, Clemson took the ball out to the 25-yard line and punted to Auburn, and the Auburn bunch brought it down the field bucking 5 and 6 yards at a time, taking the ball to Clemson's 15-yard line. Hughes then carried it over for a touchdown. Score at end of second half was 12 to 0.

Auburn's goal was never in danger but once. Both teams played good ball.

The line-up was as follows:

ATLANTA BOY LED ROOTERS

Hamilton Douglas, of This City, Directed Vandy's All Brigade Saturday.

Atlanta figured in the Michigan-Vandy football game Saturday by having one of her sons as leader of the men.

Behind the team, Hamilton Douglas, Jr., the son of the Nashville Douglas, Jr., known lawyer, directing the yells of the bunch of Vanderbilt rooters who pulled hard for their team through the great battle.

Mr. Douglas is the recipient of much press comment on the part he took in the game, as the two following clippings from the Nashville papers show:

Ten minutes later a mighty cheer from the northwest section of the field gave notice of the appearance of the McGuffin machine. As the eleven wearing the colors of the old gold and black trotted onto the field, a thundering burst of applause and shouts from 7,000 voices went up, while the band again played "Dixie," then changing into the Vanderbilt song, "Cheer for the Old Gold and Black." Impregnable Douglas, from his elevated stand, waving his arms wildly, leading the cheering squad, then arose from the impregnable stand and shouted in honor of the valiant warriors who were to defend the honor of old Vandy.

The Vanderbilt student body has at last discovered a leader of whooping-things-up, who is entitled to distinguished mention. If there is no provision for endowing this department, being made famous by the Tish-haird youth who keeps the rooters in action, there ought to be. His leadership was masterful throughout, and the way he handled the cheering and singing kept things lively all the time. Instructor Washburn, of the Glee Club, also scored a great success in the way he had drilled his pupils in warbling.

Earthquake in Guatemala.

New Orleans, November 4.—An earthquake at Guatemala City and covering a wide territory in Guatemala on October 16 and 17 was reported today by passengers arriving on the steamer Bluefields from Port Harlow. Several persons were hurt in Guatemala City by falling objects during the shocks, which returned from 10 o'clock at night until about 8 o'clock the following morning. The Bluefields passengers said that a large number of the buildings in the city showed ragged cracks after the quake, but that they did not hear of any fatalities.

BIG RACING CARNIVAL
TODAY IN BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham, Ala., November 4.—(Special.)—Alabama auto enthusiasts are preparing to pull off a big racing carnival tomorrow afternoon at the state fair grounds that promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted on any southern track. Ten big races have been planned, with an entry list made up of amateurs owning sixty cars. Lewis Christie Strang will appear as the feature, driving the 135-horse power Christie car in efforts to lower the world's record of 51 3-8, which he set here October 15.

The racing carnival is being pulled off under the direction of Homer George, one of the Christie managers. He is confident Strang will do a mile in fifty seconds, flat as all experts agree the Birmingham track is the fastest mile auto course in the world. It is as smooth and hard as asphalt, with the turns banked in ultra-scientific style. After this meet, the Christie car will be shipped east and Mr. George and Mr. Strang will go to San Antonio, Texas, where the former and his partner, William Pickens, are promoting auto days for November 10, 17 and 24 at the international exposition. Pickens is now there. Strang returned here from California, saying this track was best for records.

AT EMORY YESTERDAY

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the seniors and freshmen clashed on Weber athletic field, the contest ending in a victory for the seniors, score 10 to 0.

The game was full of fumbles and off-side plays, but was more interesting than the vast majority anticipated, the freshmen holding their opponents exceptionally well.

WE DO PAINLESS EXTRACTING

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

An election for president, first vice president and three directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce will take place November 26 in the chamber of commerce rooms, the Empire building.

During a meeting of the organization yesterday afternoon a nominating committee composed of Sam D. Jones, Robert F. Maddox, Henry Johnson, Harry Whitcomb and W. H. Kiser was named to present candidates for the vacancies occurring.

The terms of J. W. Pope, president; David Woodward, first vice president; Forrest Adair, director; Harry Schlesinger, director, and L. A. Ransom, director, expire with the year and the annual election will fill these vacancies.

So far no candidates have shown for the places and it is up to the nominating committee to select names for the members to vote for.

President Pope has given it out that he cannot serve another term. Mr. Woodward, the first vice president, whose name has been suggested for the presidency, declares that under no conditions will he consent to the use of his name.

The election will be by ballot and the ballot box will be open in the chamber of commerce on the 26th from 12 o'clock up to 5 o'clock that evening.

President Pope called the meeting to order. Of the directors there were present Robert L. Foreman, Harry Schlesinger, W. S. Duncan, Joseph T. Orme, C. E. Caverly, David Woodward and W. G. Cooper, secretary.

When the secretary read the message sent to Supervising Architect Taylor last week touching the federal building material, a formal indorsement was given the action of the president and secretary.

The finance report covering the year was most satisfactory to the directors. It showed a net balance in bank for the association.

Upon the motion of Mr. Caverly the secretary was directed to notify the exchange members that the exchange contracts would have to be renewed before the last of the year. It was shown that the emergency subscriptions made were not used and are subject to the call of those making them.

The eleventh annual meeting of the deep waterways advocates, booked for Knoxville November 13, was brought before the meeting by Mr. Caverly, who suggested that a committee be named to attend that convention, and that the same committee or another one be empowered to attend the deep waterways meeting in Macon. The suggestion was accepted, and President Pope will name a committee later.

EITHER INDICT OR EXONERATE

So Judge Felder Charges Jury
About Exchange Bank.

JUDGE MENTIONS RUMORS

Constitution Bureau, Brown House, Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—Judge William H. Felton, of Bibb superior court, called upon the grand jury sworn in today for the November term of the court to either bring specific charges against the officials and persons connected with the failure of the Exchange bank or exonerate them. He dealt at length with the assertions and charges which have been made against the bank officials, and made clear the duty of the jury with regard to this matter.

The Judge's Charge. He said to the jury in part: "I do not refer to the Exchange bank matter simply because I have heard so many things regarding the conduct of the officers, but because the community should know of it if anything has gone in other than the right way. It has been generally stated that irregularities have caused the bank's present condition. Receivers have been appointed and are now at work, but I know nothing about the books, as I have not examined them, but the case of the bank is in the hands of this court at the present time. It is now with the grand jury to make investigations."

"If any violation of the law has been committed, it is the work of the grand jury to ferret it out and bring in a presentment. Get at the real essence of the matter and make it known. For thirty-five years the bank was doing business and much of the social welfare of the city may be placed at the doors of the generosity of the bank officials, and their many courtesies. These are among the many good things it has done, but if it be a fact that it was wrecked by internal rottenness that fact should be made known and a recital of the facts should be given when the grand jury makes its presentment. Then the offenders, if there are any, may come up for trial in regular ways."

Judge Felton also called upon the jury to look after the evils of the gambling houses in Macon and remove them wherever they are found. The court went into the work of the November term and the grand jury held the first session of the day. There will be much work to be done before the end of the session.

Motion to Dismiss by Bank. A motion to dismiss the suit brought by Trustee J. S. Talley, of the W. A. Davis Company, in the United States court, was filed by Attorney T. S. Felder for the Exchange bank this morning. Several days ago attorneys representing the bank went before Judge T. M. Whipple in Cordelle with an injunction which they sought against the trustee, but Judge Whipple made no effort to hear the case on account of the character of the proceeding. The injunction proceeding involved the jurisdiction of the United States court, and no effort was made to decide the matter.

Attorneys representing the bank will now be required to appear before Judge Emory Speer and fight for their claims. The suits against the bank filed by Trustee Talley involve more than $50,000 in notes and property of the Davis company which he alleges was turned over to the Exchange bank after the Davis company became insolvent. The fight before Judge Speer will be made against the jurisdiction of the United States court on claims that the litigation against the Exchange bank has proceeded to a considerable extent in the state court. Trustee Talley claims that the case is taken into the bankruptcy court as part of the proceeding in bankruptcy against the Davis company.

In Election Held Yesterday All
hibition.

Columbiana, Ala., November 4.—Reports from three-fourths of the precincts of Shelby county give 820 votes for prohibition, and 80 against it, enough to show that the county will be overwhelmingly dry. Vincent gave 102 for prohibition and 6 against, while Columbiana, the county seat, gave 196 for prohibition, and 8 against. Women and children were prominent at the polls in both of these towns.

Coleman Committed to Jail. Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—R. A. Coleman has been held in police barracks several days for his arraignment for a hearing.

Many Petty Larcenies. Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—The police have been engaged for several days rounding up the petty larceny cases and Saturday and Sunday no less than seven persons were lodged in police barracks for shoplifting and other small offenses. Five cases were sent up to the city court this morning at the session of recorder's court, and others are pending a hearing.

Central of Georgia Seeks to Amend Petition Against Commission.

The Central of Georgia railroad yesterday filed with the clerk of the United States court an amendment to its petition against the Georgia railroad commission in 1906.

In the amendment it is asked that the name of Joseph E. Brown, then a member of the commission, be dismissed and that Messrs. McLendon, Hillyer and Callaway, who have since been added to the commission, and J. K. Hines and Governor Hoke Smith be added.

LABOR UNION IS ACCUSED

Alleged That Pressmen's Organization Has Violated Injunction. Cincinnati, November 4.—A violation of the injunction against the officers of the International Pressmen's Union was alleged in a paper filed in the United States court here today by attorneys for the United Typethetae of America. On application of the typethetae the federal court recently issued a permanent injunction, forbidding the union officials from advising an eight-hour strike prior to January 1, 1908, or from recommending a strike for a closed shop at any time, or from having strike benefits in connection with any strike. It is now charged that in the circulation of a general circular to local organizations this injunction has been violated. Judge Thompson set November 12 for hearing the matter.

JORDAN SCORES WOMAN WRITER

Single Communion Plan Is Discussed by Baptist Ministers.

At a meeting of the Baptist ministers yesterday morning, Rev. John D. Jordan scored the criticism of the woman writer who recently had a story in The Ladies' Home Journal, that spoke warmly of the reception she received in churches all over the country and particularly about church hospitality. The other feature of the meeting was the mention of Dr. Broughton's two degrees, as referred to in Mayor Joyner's reply to the tabernacle's minister's sensational charge.

Dr. John E. White discussed at some length, and with great interest during the session, the status of the University of Virginia, religiously, in connection with the influence of Thomas Jefferson over the policy of that institution. In Dr. Jordan's talk he led off by saying that, in his pulpit Sunday, he had defended his fellow-workers against the criticism in the article in the Ladies' Home Journal. He affirmed that it was not the business of a pastor, the church and its members to organize a club for visitors, although he said, at all times, strangers have been and always will be received with a welcome hand.

Dr. White, when a report was called for on the Tabernacle Infirmary, reported that after a thorough investigation it had been ascertained that the institution was one of the best, deserving in the city for support from the denomination, and went still further by naming the trustees, who are: Dr. W. Landrum, Rev. John D. Jordan, Rev. John E. White, Dr. J. W. Millard and Dr. John F. Purser. There are seven other members of the board, who will come from the tabernacle itself.

It was stated when the single communion question arose that a great majority of the churches are now using unfermented grape juice, so the prohibition law will hardly have any effect on the Atlanta congregations. Both Drs. Millard and Landrum stated they had tried the single communion on Sunday, finding it to be more impressive and hygienic. The single communion is the serving of the wine in individual cups.

Along these lines Dr. Broughton remarked that finally the ministers of the city had adopted his way of thinking. His speech at once started a rapid fire of questions from the audience. Most of the queries were about whether he had a D. D., M. D., or what. The tabernacle pastor replied that he would answer this question on next Sunday in his sermon.

Rev. C. E. W. Dobbs completed the session by reading a paper on the "Importance of Contending for the Faith."

COSTLY NEW BANK OPENS

First National of Montgomery Started Business Yesterday.

Montgomery, Ala., November 4.—(Special.)—Though there is talk of tight money and many of the towns of the country are using clearing house certificates, Montgomery opened for business today one of the most magnificent bank buildings in the south, the First National. It is arranged according to the latest ideas of banking houses and finished in hard wood and marble. The cost of the structure runs well up toward half a million dollars and is the first skyscraper for the capital city.

In the quarters just vacated by the First National opened today the Alabama Bank and Trust Company, with capital of $300,000. The president is J. L. Hall, former president of the Merchants' and Planters' Bank National, with W. F. Vandiver, one of the greatest wholesale grocers in the south, as vice president. Among the directors is Charles M. Wickersham, president of the Western of Alabama railway. The rooms occupied by this new bank are among the finest in the south, having recently been rearranged for a banking house.

Certificates Being Issued. Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—The Macon Clearing House Association has authorized the circulation of certificates in large amounts, and they are going today instead of money.

NEGRO LYNCHED AT COURT HOUSE

Penalty Was Paid For an Attempt at Criminal Assault.

Cameron, Tex., November 4.—Following his indictment today by the grand jury on a charge of attempted criminal assault, Alex Johnson, a negro, was taken from the jail here by a mob of 500 men and hanged to a tree in the court house yard. The officers and influential citizens pleaded with the mob to allow the law to take its course, but their efforts were without effect, and the doors of the jail building were battered down, the negro secured and lynched. The town is quiet this evening. The governor ordered out the militia, but not in time to save the negro.

NEGRO DOCTORS MEET.

Tuberculosis Was Discussed at Convention Held in Macon Yesterday. Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—The medical treatment of tuberculosis, outdoor treatment, the sweeping of houses and railway cars while occupied by persons, the acute stages of the disease, and the general apprehension of consumption among the negroes, proved the ideas that brought forth earnest consideration and long discussions at the tuberculosis congress held by the black race at Central City Park, here, this morning and this afternoon. The leading negro physicians of the state are in attendance, and the meetings resulted in the passing of resolutions which put the race, as far as medical skill is concerned, to working out the best method of preventing the rapidly increasing disease in the south. Many negro physicians were in attendance, some representing other states than Georgia.

CHARGES LIBEL; WANTS DAMAGES

Editor Miller Will Enter Suit
Against J. Gid
Morris.

Growing out of the protest filed by J. Gid Morris, of Cobb county, over the award to Bulloch county of the first prize and $1,200 cash money for having the best agricultural display at the recent state fair, Editor J. R. Miller, of The Statesboro News, in charge of the Bulloch county exhibit, states that he is going to sue for libel and damages to the extent of $5,000.

"I have already employed Felder, Anderson, Rountree & Wilson to file a bill for libel," stated Editor Miller last night, "and have paid a retaining fee to make it binding. The suit will be filed in the Cobb county clerk's office either Wednesday or Thursday. The protest charges that I signed an entry blank that all products entered were grown in Bulloch county this year, and yet those shown by me were not grown in Bulloch county, and had been on exhibition before."

"Mr. Morris protested my award, now I am going to protest his protest." Yesterday the state fair committee, after considering the protest for about a minute, confirmed the decision of the judges, and gave first prize to Bulloch county and second to Cobb.

Alleged Robbers Arraigned.

New York, November 4.—Six men were arraigned in police court today charged with robberies from the Adams Express Company, which, it is alleged, will aggregate between $30,000 and $60,000. The prisoners are: Charles McCarthy and Max Pope, employees of the company, and Jacob Levy, Wolf Levy, James Suckerman and Henry Moskowitz. McCarthy and Pope are charged with larceny, and the others for receiving stolen property.

Macon, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—At the annual meeting of the bond commission of the city of Macon this morning the official report of financial conditions was made. The showing in the reduction of the municipal debt is a very fine one, and all officials are pleased. President R. H. Brown was himself highly pleased that he could sign such a satisfactory report to the public. The report is a long one, and is concerned with all the finances and property in the hands of the commission.

ATLANTA, GA., November 5, 1907.

The morning railroad wreck is as regular as the sun rises.

Wall street found its financial affluence in a jingling hurry.

No suspicion of hard times about these golden Christmas books.

Wall street rocks the boat so, it's a wonder it's hard to sit steady in it.

We assume the new "balloon-face" will partake of the expression angelic.

Mr. Caffery evidently is a convert to the axiom that "it pays to advertise."

There's one kind of yellow peril that Wall street would fain hug to its bosom.

Cheer up! The Christmas children won't admit that hard times are in the world at all.

The southern prohibition movement and the squeezing of water from Wall street seem synchronous.

The currency don't need a phalanx of reformers to bring it to the mountain's bench. It's there already.

Why shouldn't Messrs. Caffery and Sanders go into the cabarets and fight it out with Teddy bears?

Here's hopin' that tonight Mr. Theodore Burton, of Cleveland, Ohio, will be wailing, "Too much Johnson!"

General Booth is about the only big celebrity when the public will believe when he says it's a "farewell" tour.

Challenging a lieutenant governor to mortal combat is another indication of the strenuous influences Roosevelt left in Louisiana.

Markham's "Man with the Hoe" is going the rounds again. Just at this time the man with the hoe holds the key to the situation.

The "Won't-Go-Home-Till-Morning" Club will tell you that the Panama canal locks are not the only ones that should be made wider.

There may be no third-term precedent, but there are also comparatively few for declining a nomination that is tendered you on a platter.

With a quartet of kings in London at one time, there shouldn't be any difficulty in making a royal flush—if somebody doesn't rob the "kitty."

The New York hospital that announces "intense light" as a banishment of pain can't have in mind the sort the president admits he turned on.

Still, it's a good thing for Panama to celebrate her independence occasionally, lest we forget there's something on the isthmus beside the canal.

With Finland joining the prohibition column, it is to be expected that anarchist tales originating there henceforth will show less vivid imagination.

A contemporary asks if paragraphers will ever cease using the phrase "nevertheless and notwithstanding"? Not as long as it fills nearly a line of space.

The Washington Herald predicts an advance in rates by the Atlanta waterworks board on the first of the year. All of which proves it never rains but it pours.

Since it has been discovered that the father of his country was the first discoverer of oil in America, it follows that Uncle Jawn must be the step-father of his country.

COTTON AND GOVERNMENT HELP!

The Savannah Morning News and other thoughtful and conservative newspapers join in the request that the secretary of the treasury should now give heed to the demand for ready currency which is being felt throughout the south, and extend to the cotton farmers the same aid that was so generously poured out for the benefit of Wall street.

Nearly every one admits the justice of the secretary's action in extending government aid to the business interests of New York. The situation there was a serious one. If it had not been checked the consequences would have been widespread and disastrous. The $25,000,000 of government money poured into the street helped to restore confidence in the inherent soundness of the various railroad and industrial stocks which were rapidly going off. This money furnished the means of checking the downward tendency.

While there was some criticism of this action that enabled brokers to hold on to their margined stocks, in so far as the end aimed at was the protection of legitimate property, which was depreciating in value through no inherent weakness, the treasury aid was fully warranted.

But identically the same adverse conditions that affected the price of even gilt-edge securities in New York and caused a depreciation in value are responsible for the downward trend in the cotton market. The need of restoring prices to their proper level is as great in one case as in the other. The prosperity of the whole country is increased by the cotton crop being marketed at a fair price. This crop annually adds hundreds of millions of dollars to the credit account of this country abroad and leads to vast imports of foreign gold. That is precisely what is needed today, and in the effort to market the crop and bring into the country the proceeds from its sale, the national treasury should aid.

This is no new plan that is being proposed. It is the same principle that was acted on in the deposit of $25,000,000 in New York. It is proposed in the interest of business, not only in the south, but throughout the country.

The treasury department has declined to agree to the proposal of the delegation of New Orleans bankers that foreign cotton buyers should deposit the cotton purchase money with the fiscal agents of this government abroad and that the money be paid out by the subtreasury in New Orleans upon the receipt of cable advices. If Secretary Cortelyou believes that plan impracticable, he should at least actively cooperate in devising some other means by which the money so urgently needed to move the south's great cotton crop, and which cannot be secured from New York at the present time, can be procured by southern bankers.

In discussing this matter, The Savannah News says:

Of course, in times like these there is always a disposition to criticize before all the facts are known. If, however, an investigation should appear that there has been discrimination against the south, the officials guilty of it should be exposed to public condemnation. It is important just now that the south have ample funds for the moving of cotton. The lack of necessary money may affect the price of cotton anywhere from a half to a cent a pound. That would mean many millions of dollars to the south. The secretary of the treasury understands this and so does the president. Therefore they should do all in their power to give the southern banks an ample supply of money. The New York banks appear to have all they need for the present, and therefore the government could probably give New Orleans and other cities in the south a little financial help.

Money is needed to move the crops. When the crops are marketed, the money secured from this source will help every line of business. By aiding in this movement by some means consistent with the rules which restrict the treasury department's operations to a safe basis, both Secretary Cortelyou and President Roosevelt will perform a work which will greatly aid business everywhere and incidentally increase their popularity in the south.

COTTON WAREHOUSE CERTIFICATES.

The clearing house certificates which have been issued throughout the country have proven a God-send at this time, when a sufficient volume of money is unobtainable to meet the demands of commerce.

The banks, in deciding to resort to this well-known and oft-tried financial expedient, have extended aid to all lines of business. A medium of exchange is needed; something to take the place of money in paying bills and meeting the ordinary demands of trade. The certificates do in a most satisfactory way. Backed as they are by gilt-edge securities and having behind them the combined credit of the banks entering the agreement, they are freely accepted and pass as currency.

At Cedar town and Rockmart, recently, business men met with the bankers and secured the assurance of the latter that every aid would be extended to the cotton grower to hold his cotton for a fair price and not sacrifice it during the present period of temporary depression. Every dollar that can be spared by the banks will go to the aid of the farmers. Other communities throughout the south should take similar action in the effort to aid the man who is most vitally affected by the existing money shortage.

A suggestion contained in a card published in Sunday's Constitution from John I. Fulwood, of Cedar town, shows how various southern communities might enter into an agreement to further aid the farmer. He says:

"When the banks in any southern town reach their limit of loans on cotton, why not call together the farmers, warehousemen, merchants and bankers, issue certificates on cotton and all agree to accept them at par?"

The great essential requirement of any security used as a basis for currency, or certificates which will pass as currency, is its quality of being readily converted into cash. In this respect cotton meets every requirement. It can be instantly sold in any market in the world and at any time of the year. It has a real, permanent, tangible value which can never be destroyed.

Certificates based upon cotton, insured and stored in a warehouse, are as much an evidence of real wealth as national bank currency. By common agreement they could circulate in any city or town where the need of a circulating medium is felt, and certificates so issued would be as good as gold.

The details of the plan could be worked out easily. The amount of cotton necessary to insure absolute security could be decided. Even if it were deemed best to advance only 5 cents on cotton quoted at 10 or 12 cents, that plan would furnish enough certificates to pay ordinary debts until conditions righted themselves and the world's demand for the staple put up the price to a point where it could be sold at a fair profit.

In a word, the national and state banks have devised a plan of which the vast cotton industry of the south could take advantage for the protection of themselves and for the benefit of the whole country.

Cleveland's Mayorality Fight.

Hon. Tom Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, and his three-cent fair platform, are being opposed in Cleveland today by the republican organization of the whole country.

It comes about in this way: Mayor Johnson, democratic mayor, and Theodore E. Burton, republican congressman, who have each received three elections at the hands of the people, are opposing each other for the mayorality. Ohio is a strategic point in the national political game. It is the home of Secretary Taft, and the genial secretary of war is a candidate for president and presumably has the president's strong personal indorsement. The negroes in Ohio constitute the balance of power, casting a vote equal to the usual republican majority.

Realizing the disaffection of the negroes on account of the Brownsville affair, the administration would naturally be pleased to extend republican control in the state by taking charge of the municipal administration of Cleveland.

Mayor Johnson and his famous "three-cent" campaign has attracted the attention of the whole country. The Cleveland Electric Company has recently reduced its fares from 11 tickets for 50 cents to 7 tickets for 25 cents. It is throwing its aid to the republican nominee and promises if its franchise is renewed and protection afforded by the new administration, should Mr. Burton be successful, to continue these rates and to grant double cross-town transfers. It insists that it cannot make money on the Johnson 3-cent basis.

The Forest City Railway Company is supporting the mayor and the 3-cent program. Thus the two local street car lines are in direct conflict. The franchises of the former company, which have been recently expired, have been taken up by the latter on a 3-cent agreement. The latter company claims if it puts the reduced rates into effect, it cannot pay off $2,026,000 of bonds due in 1909, and will be put into the hands of a receiver by the bondholders.

The contest is thus not alone one of politics and parties, but a test of how the people feel on a vital problem of street railroad regulation.

One of the scientific brethren says the human being of the far future will be legless. But that will be all right. Candidates will not run for office then, but have a roll over.

WHO'S NEXT?

Strange things are happening in Georgia. A year ago this fair state was filled with mourning and lamentations. A terrible catastrophe had come to pass. The tried and honored servants of the people, the men who had represented this proud commonwealth for twenty-five years in the office of the chief magistrate and in the two houses of the legislature were discovered to be conscienceless, mercenary and absolutely bound hand and foot by the railroads.

They had sold the state for a mess of pottage. Stentorian voices were lifted up and obstreperous clamorings were heard outside the gate for some valiant Moses to lead the people who had trusted and been deceived back into the promised land.

It caused a shudder to chase up and down the spines of the timid. A pall overspread the landscape. The history of the past had been blotted by outrageous doings. Gloom, deep, impenetrable gloom, was to settle over the state unless the light of "reform" would dispel the clouds.

The scene has changed: Not only the background, but the dramatic personae.

Today we see a silk-hatted, rapid looking creature labeled "Atlanta Merchant" being held at arm's length by the tyrant "Railroad," drawing dirty chestnuts out of a blazing fire. "Poor merchant! Unlucky merchant! Another victim, another tool of the railroads!"

Who next?

A year ago merchants and public were being defrauded by disreputable, disgraceful and dishonest legislators and governors. The people's inheritance was being squandered.

A few months later and the merchants have been gathered in. They are now castigated as the tools of the railroads. They are pictured as the men seized upon by designing, plutocratic railroad magnates to do "Mean Tricks."

The time has come for all men to be on their guard. Who knows what innocent citizen may be seized upon next and carried off to the cave of the "railroad robbers."

Look This Way, Mr. Roosevelt.

(C. E. McGregor in The Jeffersonian.)
Now that your able secretary of the treasury has deposited $25,000,000 of our surplus money with Wall street to relieve the money stringency produced by gamblers in watered stock, can't you induce your appointees to put a few millions of our money into banks of the south to relieve the pressure which Wall street speculators are now exerting to force the warehousemen of the south upon a panic market?

The act of congress under which he made the deposit in Wall street says he "shall distribute the deposits herein provided for as far as practicable equally between the different states and sections."

The prosperity of the United States is more dependent upon the cotton crop than upon the gambling checks of Wall street. The greater the price of cotton the more gold it brings from Europe to America. The smaller the price the less gold America gets. The more gold America gets the richer and stronger we grow.

The eastern bankers are reported as notifying their southern correspondents to withhold loans on cotton stored in warehouses. If this is adhered to millions of bales of cotton might be forced upon a "hokey" market, which means ruin to thousands of laboring farmers.

The splinters of the world have taken no orders for goods at less than 15 to 20 cents basis for cotton.

But the speculator for the present is between the producer and the spinner. If the speculator in conjunction with the eastern banks can force the cotton farmer to market his cotton, the farmer loses and the speculator wins.

Which side will you choose, Mr. President? If that of the farmer, instruct your secretary to "distribute" $25,000,000 of our money among the southern banks.

Sentenced to Electric Chair.

New York, November 4.—Bedros Hampartoomian, who shot and killed Hovhannes Tavshanjian, a wealthy Armenian merchant, in Union square last July, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison during the week beginning December 18. His counsel declared, after sentence had been pronounced, that an appeal to a higher court will be taken.

PROBE TELEPHONE RATES AND PASS ON REDUCTION

Terrell Petition Will Be Considered by Railway Board Today—Compressed Cotton Rates Up Tomorrow—Other Capitol News.

When the railroad commission of Georgia meets this morning, with a complete board present, the petition of Councilman W. H. Terrell, of Atlanta, asking for a revision and a reduction of the tolls charged by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company will be taken up and acted upon.

This will follow the action of the company in filing with the commission a copy of its charter, franchises, capitalization, income and output, its rates, schedules and the like, as called for by the commission of all public utility corporations in a circular issued by the new commission on August 24.

This report was to have been filed some time ago, but the company asked for a delay and this continuation was granted. When the Terrell petition came up last week the commission delayed it pending the filing of the report requested. The entire day will probably be consumed by this hearing. The commission has already filed with the commission a book giving the details of a similar hearing had on this subject recently in North Carolina.

On Wednesday the commission will take up the petition of the Farmers' Union of Georgia requesting that the commission grant a lower classification for compressed cotton than that now charged for baled or round bales, held to be more bulky and unwieldy. The general freight agents of the Georgia railroads have been asked to meet in Atlanta on Thursday to see about some new classifications asked. The week will be a busy one for this commission.

Examining Pharmacy Applicants.

The state board of pharmaceutical examination for Georgia, are holding the semi-annual examination for applicants for license to practice in Georgia, in the senate chamber of the state capitol. About forty applicants began the two-day examination on yesterday and will conclude it tonight. The board of examiners consists of Dr. R. H. Land, Jr., of Augusta, president; C. D. Jordan, of Monticello, secretary; Sam Payne of Macon; Dr. H. C. Shuptrick, of Savannah, and Dr. W. S. Elkin, Jr., of Atlanta.

Pardon Board to Meet.

The prison commission of Georgia will sit for the November audience today, when a number of pardon petitions for clemency will be argued. The only capital case is that of Fred Rosenberry, of Newton county, who is under sentence of death for murder, and whose counsel is making an effort to have his neck saved. The governor has signed a pardon for Sam Napoleon, a white man convicted in Atlanta in August for being drunk on the highway and sentenced to serve six months. Since being in jail he has broken his leg, cannot work and is only a care on the county, so commutation was granted.

The pure food law has been enforced rigidly for the past month, and this is the first time a case has been made out.

Pat.

RAILROADS WON'T DADDY PETITION OF MERCHANTS

Nobody Can Be Found Who Will Admit Truth of Governor Smith's Contention—Merchants Stand Pat.

There is loose somewhere in the archives of the executive department at the state capitol a sadly daddyless babe, or else Governor Smith must be somewhat in error in his statement that the petition sent to him Friday, asking an increase over the passenger rates as ordered under the administration of former Governor Terrell, and now in effect, this petition being largely signed by the most prominent merchants and wholesale houses of Atlanta, was in reality written by the railroads, and that the merchants who signed it were nothing more than tools of the framers of the paper.

Careful search of the railroad offices of Atlanta fails to reveal a single railroad official who will admit a parental relation to the now famous petition, although the hunt was diligently prosecuted all day yesterday. All say that they suppose the men who signed it knew what they were doing, and that the character of the signatures attached to the petition should be final proof that the signers were expressing their own conviction, and were not being used to push chestnuts of the fire for the railroads or for anyone else.

It will be remembered that Friday morning, just prior to the assembling of the conference in which Governor Smith, Governor Comer of Alabama, and Governor Glenn of North Carolina, took part, Governor Smith was handed a petition asking that the present rates in Georgia be changed in favor of practically what has been agreed upon in Alabama, a 2 1/2-cent flat rate, with certain provisions for lower rates on 2,000, 1,000 and 500-mile books. Such a change would involve substantial increases over rates now in effect on many roads in Georgia as the result of the rates ordered during Governor Terrell's administration, following the petition for a 2-cent rate, which was presented to the railroad commission by the Farmers' Union.

An interesting fact in connection with the petition to Governor Smith was that it bore the names of a number of well known men who are most active in the agitation for rate reduction in the campaign of 1908.

Governor Smith, through the press, replied to the petition, by declaring that it had been written by the railroads, though signed by the merchants, and that some of them had signed it under a misapprehension.

The men who signed the petition are standing pat. So far no one whose name was attached to the petition has disowned it, nor has any merchant come out in a declaration to the effect that he was among those who signed it under a misapprehension.

No railroad man can be found who will admit the declaration as to the fatherhood of the petition, and in the meantime the public is wondering, if the governor is right about it, who in the name of heaven the daddy of the petition really is.

DUCKWORTH ISSUES CALL.

Cotton and Cane Growers Will Meet at Lake City, Fla., November 14. Barnesville, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—President R. F. Duckworth, of the Georgia Farmers' Union, has issued a call for a convention of those interested in the raising of ribbon cane and sea island cotton, the meeting to be held in Lake City, Fla., November 14 and 15. President Duckworth's call, in full, is as follows:

"Brethren: You who are interested in the growing of ribbon cane and sea island cotton, should not fail to be represented at the convention, which is to be held at Lake City, Fla., November 14 and 15. Do not fail to be on hand promptly at 10 o'clock, a. m.

"There will be arrangements made for the marketing of all sea island cotton and ribbon cane sirup grown by members of the Farmers' Union. This meeting will mean a great deal for farmers in south Georgia and Florida. Do not fail to be represented.

"R. F. DUCKWORTH, "State President."

GOV. BLANCHARD DENIES

That He Was Slighted at the Jamestown Exposition.

New Orleans, La., November 4.—Governor Newton C. Blanchard, of Louisiana, who has just returned from a visit to the Jamestown exposition, today denied the extensively circulated report that he had been slighted by the exposition officials. He said that every possible courtesy was shown him by President Tucker, of the exposition, who was an old friend, and that other exposition officials were equally as hospitable. Invitations to several entertainments held in connection with the exposition were extended Governor Blanchard, but he was unable to attend.

It was only a few months ago that the wife of Louisiana's governor died at Mineral Wells, Texas.

MERCHANTS AND FARMERS HOLD ROUSING MEETING

Farmers' Union of Polk County Declares to Hold Cotton for 15 Cents at Meeting Held in Rockmart.

Rockmart, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—The Farmers' Union of Polk county did not wait for the day set by President Barrett to meet and act upon the present situation. They saw that actions were necessary, and the quicker the better. So they came Friday from every nook and corner of Polk county, and they came for business, with the "stand pat" determination for 15-cent cotton.

After the transaction of their regular business and a discussion of the present situation among themselves, a committee was appointed to invite the business men of the town to meet with them in the council chamber. The invitation was accepted and business suspended. And never before in the history of the town, and doubtless, in the county, was a more enthusiastic meeting held.

The situation was freely discussed, the business men expressing the greatest sympathy for the farmers, and pledging themselves to render every assistance possible.

Among those who discussed the situation were: Messrs. Buell Stark, banker; W. Ferguson, D. H. Hubbard, Sam Hogue, L. Y. Allgood, merchants, and S. E. Smith, cotton buyer. In part they said:

"The situation does look grave, but it could be worse and will be worse unless we work together. We are with you and will do all we can to help you hold your cotton for better prices, and if you fail, we will all fall together."

YELLED "DERBY AND SPOONS" AT CHURCH WORSHIPERS

A Darktown youth, according to the police records, is liable to do anything from eating out of a trashy barrel to breaking into a bank. One of the latest Darktown freaks is a youth named John Bennett, and he was charged in the police court yesterday morning with poking his head into a church window while services were going on and hollering:

"Derby and spoons!"

What he meant by the expression no one knew, and his only explanation was that he once saw it in a book.

John Bennett took a stroll along Piedmont avenue last Saturday afternoon and when he reached the corner of Gilmer street he stopped in front of the Jewish synagogue. Services were being conducted inside and John stood and listened for a few moments. Then he poked his head through a half open window and shouted:

"Derby and spoons!"

The interruption caused a mild sensation in the church, and a number of worshippers rushed out. John ran and the worshippers gave chase. There was a lively scene which ended when a policeman came up and caught the yelling Darktown youth.

John Bennett was arraigned in the recorder's court yesterday morning on the charge of disturbing religious worship.

He admitted that he had yelled at the worshippers in the synagogue.

"Derby and spoons,"

"What on earth did you mean by derby and spoons?" the recorder asked him.

"Test derby and spoons," replied the prisoner.

"I can't exactly understand what such an expression can signify," said the recorder. "Where did you get it from?"

"I read it in a book," replied the prisoner. "An' after I read it I kept sayin' 'derby and spoons'."

"Well, you did you want to say it to people in a church?" asked the recorder.

"Yes, because I wanted ter say some'n er nudder," was the reply.

Recorder Broyles fined Bennett $5.75 for disturbing church people, and adjourned him to let up on "derby and spoons."

RATES AT DOCKS CAN'T BE RAISED

BULLOCH HOLDS THE FAIR PRIZE

Railroad Commission Gets Contest by Cobb Is Turned Down by Joint Committee.

General order No. 6, issued by the railroad commission of Georgia yesterday at noon, making the rates now in force by all terminal wharves and docks, the rates of the commission, and prohibiting their change, except upon the consent of the commission, in all probability prevents the railroads of Georgia from raising the ship-side rate on cotton, Wednesday of this week, from 1-1/2 cents a hundred pounds to 3 cents a hundred pounds.

Recently the commission was in receipt of a letter from the well known cotton firm of Inman, Akers & Inman, stating that it was reported that this rate was to be raised on the 6th of the month.

In consequence the following order was promulgated:

"The railroad commission of Georgia hereby adopts as its own regulations all rates, rules and other regulations of each and every corporation, company or person, subject to the jurisdiction of this commission, owning, leasing or operating any dock or wharf, wharf or wharves, terminal or terminals, or terminal station or stations, and no such rates, rules or other regulations shall be changed without the consent of the railroad commission of Georgia."

"S. G. McLENDON, Chairman,"

"GEORGE F. MONTGOMERY, Secretary."

This order makes the restrictions unanimous, as the board on last week issued a similar order restricting all common carriers from raising rates or changing schedules without the consent of the commission.

The ship-side rate in question is explained as follows: All freight charges mentioned in the tariff sheet carry cotton from inland towns to the port of delivery.

The ship-side charge is where cotton is to be loaded for exportation. The present charges are about 7-1/2 cents a bale and the proposed charge would have been an increase of 100 per cent, or 15 cents a bale.

FAMILY JAR CAUSES SMASH

HARRY JACOBS BREAKS UP CROCKERY IN HIS HOME—His Wife Has Him Arrested and Relents.

There was a genuine family jar at the home of Harry Jacobs, 141 Chapel street, Sunday at the dinner hour, that jarred the house so that all the crockery went to smash.

Jacobs was arraigned in the recorder's court yesterday morning on complaint of his wife. The arresting officer stated that Mrs. Jacobs had called him in and asked that her husband be arrested and held for disorderly conduct.

"She told me that her husband raised a terrible row," stated the officer, "and that when she attempted to remonstrate with him he broke up all their crockery."

Mrs. Jacobs, when called upon to testify, cast a tender look at her husband and said to the recorder:

"Now, you see, Judge, I did feel very bad at the way my husband did, but now I know that I was wrong in calling for a policeman, as it was just a little family row like all husbands and wives have sometimes."

"What about the broken crockery?" the recorder asked her.

"Well, you see," she explained, "Harry was sitting at the table when he got mad and as he tried to get up he just pushed the table over and away went the plates, cups and saucers. You see."

"Perfectly," said the recorder. "The whole thing was simply an accident, of course."

Jacobs was fined $10.75, which he paid, and his wife went out very happy, perfectly reconciled, and doubtless ready to buy a new supply of crockery.

W. H. PRESTON, Recorder's Clerk, Yesterday Elected Recorder Pro Tem.

Judge Preston's term as recorder pro tem. expires in March, 1909.

Judge Preston is the clerk of the recorder's court, and he is one of the very few city officials who fills a dual role. He has been clerk of the recorder's court several years and as such has made a fine record.

When it was decided to have a recorder pro tem, it was at once agreed that he was just the man for the place. He will act as recorder when Judge Broyles is not present and when members of council fail to act when called for to do so.

At this time Judge Preston will receive no extra compensation as recorder pro tem. He will be paid a salary as clerk of the court, and for the present he will get glory and honor as recorder, being called "Judge" and "Your honor."

It is believed that Judge Preston will make a most excellent recorder, as he has acquired a thorough knowledge of such judicial work since serving as clerk.

JAMES J. PULLER HERE; MAY SUCCEED CHRISTIAN

James J. Puller, formerly district passenger agent for the Seaboard Air Line, with headquarters in Philadelphia, who has been reported in the press dispatches as the successor in Atlanta to W. E. Christian, assistant general passenger agent for the Seaboard Air Line in Atlanta, has arrived in the city.

Mr. Puller states that he is in town "on special business for the Seaboard."

Mr. Christian is out of the city and cannot be seen. It has been currently reported in railroad circles for some time that Mr. Puller would succeed Mr. Christian and his appearance in the city on yesterday lent credence to the report.

There are few more popular or better known railroad men in the country than Mr. Christian and if he is succeeded in Atlanta it means that he goes to a better job "higher up."

PROF. K. G. MATHESON GOES TO BIRMINGHAM

Professor K. G. Matheson, president of the Georgia School of Technology, leaves Wednesday for a stay of two days in Birmingham, Ala., to attend the annual convention of the Southern Association of Preparatory Schools and Colleges.

Chancellor Aikland, who is secretary of the association, will be present during the convention. The annual election of officers is also on the calendar for disposal.

FOR NEW FILTERS COUNCIL VOTES

Fight on Bid Proves of No Avail.

LONGINO SCORES LIBRARY

Said Book's Scatter Disease Germs. Huddleston's Ordinance on City Officials and City Contracts Was Again Recommended to the Ordinance Committee.

The action of the water board and special committee in awarding the contract for new filter plant to the New York Continental Jewell Filtration Company for $26,000 was taken up by council yesterday afternoon.

The bid of this company contemplates a duplicate of the present filter plant that cost $34,000.

Attorney L. Z. Rosser, representing Harwood D. Elfreth, agent for the Philadelphia Water Purification Company, spoke to council and urged the consideration of a proposition or new bid of $24,500.

Mr. Rosser claimed that the company he represented had not been given the same showing as the New York company and that council should save the city the $1,500.

Attorney V. A. Batchelor spoke for the bid of the New York company.

R. Z. Milligan spoke for the New York filter, and H. D. Elfreth for the Philadelphia filter.

A report was read from George P. Hurt, of the Southern Hydraulic and Engineering Company, who indorsed the Philadelphia filter.

Mayor Pro Tem. Quillian called Alderman Holland to the chair and explained about the last bids for filters. He said a subcommittee of the water board and special council committee investigated the bids and present plant and decided that if the city was not going to duplicate the present filter plant the $22,000 bid of the New York company should be accepted; but when it was agreed to build a duplicate plant, we decided to take the $26,000 bid of the New York company."

Mayor Pro Tem. Quillian offered a resolution authorizing the water board to make a contract with the New York Continental Jewell Filtration Company for $26,000.

Councilman Terrell offered a substitute that all bids be rejected and new bids be advertised for. This motion received no second, and the mayor pro tem's resolution was adopted, council only voting, by a vote of 13 to 1.

When council adjourned the aldermanic board met and concurred in council's action.

Objected to Assessment.

T. K. Glenn appeared for the Georgia Railway and Electrical Company to object to the ordinance being assessed for the repaving of Broad street from Mitchell to Peachtree. Mr. Glenn stated that the present pavement on Broad street was Belgian block and in good condition, and he did not think it right or equitable for his company to pay for asphalt. His company, he stated, had expended over $1,000,000 for street pavement in the city. The company always stood ready to bear its portion of such public improvements, but at this time no corporation felt like expending money unjustly and unnecessarily.

The matter was referred to the street committee.

Alderman H. M. Beattell reported that prices quoted for strips of real estate to widen North avenue, near Marietta street, were entirely too high. The strips were necessary to widen North avenue for the underground railroads, he recommended that M. L. Petty be appointed as agent to condemn the property. Mr. Beattell introduced a resolution to that effect and the resolution was referred to the finance committee.

P. R. Holland and C. H. Johnson were elected to succeed themselves as members of the board of automobile inspectors.

Was Again Recommended.

Council took up the Huddleston ordinance, yesterday afternoon, which prohibited any city official from being interested either directly or indirectly in any contract or sale made with the city.

The city attorney held that the ordinance would not prohibit an official from selling material to a person who is doing contract work for the city. It claimed, however, that the ordinance would affect the purchase of some of the city boards who dealt in a business way with the city. Each case, the city attorney said, would have to be considered on its own merits.

The ordinance was recommended to the ordinance committee. This makes the second time the paper has been re-referred.

Councilman Huddleston introduced a resolution for the committee on public buildings and grounds and on public improvements to report on the feasibility of establishing buildings for public comfort in the center of the city and over the railroads between the viaducts, if practicable.

Councilman Longino offered an amendment that the same committee report on securing a general transfer station for the street car company.

The whole matter was referred and Councilman Longino and Councilman Harman were added to the committee.

Alderman Curtis introduced an ordinance for the purchase of a lot, corner of Haynes and Nelson streets, on which is erected the Walker street school, for a branch library building. The paper was referred to the school board and library board.

Councilman Longino said the whole library scheme ought to be set down on.

"The library has a lot of second-hand books," he said, "that are scattering disease germs around the city. But since they have taken a part of the Marietta street school lot for a library, I see no reason why all the school lots shouldn't have one."

Chinese Punishment.

(From The Chafu Daily News.)

The other day the Chinese police court punished one of its female subjects in a novel way.

The woman referred to assaulted an elderly man by dragging his pipe from his mouth, thereby causing the loss of two of his front teeth, and for this she was compelled to defray the expenses of a Chinese theater for two days which performed in the temple close to the main gateway.

NEW GRAND JURY GOES TO WORK

Judge Ellis Charges Members to Enforce Prohibition Law.

The November grand jury, after flitting to a lengthy charge by Judge Ellis, in which he touched on the importance of enforcing the prohibition law, found fourteen true bills, and three no bills, and did not act on three bills, and adjourned to meet again next Tuesday.

It is probable that at Tuesday's meeting the members of the grand jury will take up the suggested investigation into the conduct of the Courts of Justices of the Peace Dodgson and Hopkins. It will be recalled that before adjourning, the last grand jury suggested that such an investigation be made by the November jury. Just what the extent of the affairs to be investigated is, is not known, but it is known that the last grand jury considered the situation warranted more time and thought than it had at its disposal before the time for adjournment came.

The members of the grand jury sworn in at yesterday's session are as follows:

R. J. Griffin, Foreman; Wilbur L. Moore, Amos Fox, S. B. Turman, D. N. McCullough, H. L. Anderson, W. L. Trayham, M. L. Carrall, J. S. Middleton, F. M. Luman, Thomas B. Paine, Dennis Forkner, Craig Coffield, Thomas D. Stewart, Thomas D. Meador, Sr., R. C. Black, J. C. Greenfield, S. M. Tallafiero, W. G. Cooper, Joseph Hirsch, W. S. Byck, C. R. Winship, James R. Holliday.

The cases acted on by the grand jury yesterday were of a minor nature, and the charge of Judge Ellis was the matter of most interest that came up.

Judge Ellis, in speaking of the prohibition question, says it is a settled fact and cannot be altered by discussion. It is a law—the will of a majority of the people—and it is the duty of the grand jury to see that it is enforced in every particular.

Judge Ellis also touched on the question of organizations of any kind taking money for accommodations which they cannot furnish. This reference was apropos of the visit to Atlanta recently of a circus, which sold admission tickets far in excess of its capacity. The judge stated that there now existed sufficient legislation on the subject to secure convictions for such a violation of the law was clearly indicated.

With the exception of these two references the charge of Judge Ellis is general in nature. The duty of investigating the county books, records and county departments having devolved upon the last grand jury, the present one is given no instructions on this point, and is relieved of that duty. From the present outlook it will have but little work before it.

THE FULL SMOKEHOUSE.

An interesting issue of The Southern Ruralist, of Atlanta.

We all know that properly cured hams, bacon and sausage are mighty good eating. Some of us do not realize, however, the enormous economic and financial importance of southern hogs.

Their cash value is nearly $420,000,000. Their annual products, in the shape of fresh and cured meat, are worth half this enormous sum.

A fact even yet harder to realize is that one-quarter of this annual wealth is often needlessly wasted, through improper care and curing.

This is cause for a recent unusual and most valuable example of publishing enterprise. The Southern Ruralist, of Atlanta, has made its November 1 number a "Smokehouse Special."

It offered five cash prizes for the best contributed articles on the making or curing of meat. Hundreds of articles, giving the practical experience of successful farmers, were received from all over the south. Twenty of these articles are published in this special.

In addition there are articles covering every phase of the meat question, from the very highest authorities in this country.

It is safe to assert that nothing approaching this special has ever been attempted before. It is the most complete, lucid and authoritative discussion of this great meat question in existence. It is an excellent reference authority for the use of those who wish to make meat profitably.

The seeker after information concerning any point in the curing of meat will find it here. Science, principles, successful practice, detailed methods and receipts are here.

Here are some of the things plainly told. These questions constantly asked by hog owners are clearly answered:

How to prevent meat from spoiling after salted. How to kill, cure and save meat, absolutely independent of the weather, at any time of the year. How to protect against flies, skippers or other insects. How to cure without smokehouse. How to prevent "rusting" in smoking. How to keep cured meat indefinitely in the hottest summer weather. How to make the famous "Smithfield" hams. How to cure, prepare, make or save each form or kind of meat or meat product.

From so large a mass of valuable material it is difficult to select that most useful.

We believe the five prize articles, the two entitled "Between You and Me" and "Weather Man or Ice Man," and the article by Dr. Stockbridge, "The Why of Meat Curing," are particularly worthy of perusal. They supply information the use of which means the saving of millions of dollars to the south every year.

Milton Smith to Inform Legislature.

Montgomery, Ala., November 4.—(Special.)—President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, arrived in the city tonight. He says he will remain until after the opening of the special session of the legislature, and give the members all the information he has or can get in regard to the transportation lines of the state. He will go to Talladega tomorrow, and from there to Gadsden to look into the question of new depots, and will return here Wednesday night.

JUDGE HITS AT LYNCHING

"The Beginning of Anarchy," Says Judge Martin to Grand Jury.

Columbus, Ga., November 4.—(Special.)—In his charge to the Montgomery grand jury today, the first charge he has delivered in this county in fifteen years, Judge J. H. Martin touched upon lynching in connection with his reference to the statute against obstructing sheriffs and constables in the discharge of their official duties.

He said that the law requiring that if an officer is interfered with in the discharge of his duty he must report the circumstances to the grand jury, together with a list of the guilty parties, was enacted because of the great number of lynchings in the country.

Judge Martin said with great emphasis that there was no excuse for lynchings, as there is no crime for which the law does not provide an adequate punishment. He declared that lynching was the beginning of anarchy and should not be tolerated. Originally lynching was resorted to in the case of only one crime, but in late years lynchings have been committed as punishment for various offenses. Judge Martin's charge was a strong one throughout.

BURBANK PRESIDENT OF INTERNATIONAL

A. N. Burbank, the New President of International Paper Company, Well Known Here.

At the recent annual meeting of the International Paper Company A. N. Burbank, one of the organizers of the company, and who for years has served as its treasurer, was elected to the presidency of the company, succeeding Hugh J. Chisholm, who becomes chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Burbank is well known in Atlanta, he having visited here several times, and the news of his promotion was received here with much pleasure by those who know him.

Mr. Burbank is a native of Franklin, N. H., where he was born in 1843.

On ending his school days he served a clerkship of a few years in a country store, meantime studying telegraphy.

After leaving the country store he secured a position as telegrapher with the Northern Railway of New Hampshire. This led to other railroad positions, until he had filled almost all of them, including brakeman, conductor, etc. For four years he acted as station master at Andover and Lebanon, N. H. His duties as station master included shoveling snow, helping wood up the engines, attending to baggage, and in fact doing every form of work within an area of a mile of the depot, to say nothing of acting as telegraph operator.

Mr. Burbank began his active connection with the paper industry as bookkeeper in the mill of Warren F. Daniell, at Franklin, N. H.; since then he has been actively identified with the manufacture of paper. When the Daniell mill was sold to the Wiggins Paper Company, of which the late William A. Russell was president, Mr. Burbank remained with the latter company, gaining the aid, encouragement and friendship of Mr. Russell.

Through his association with Mr. Russell Mr. Burbank became connected with the Russell Paper Company, of Lawrence, Mass., and the Fall Mountain Paper Company, of Bellows Falls, Vt., and other companies. When the mills owned by these companies became a part of the International Paper Company Mr. Burbank was elected second vice president of the company, and later succeeded William E. Spier as treasurer, which position, together with that of president, he still holds.

After leaving the country store he secured a position as telegrapher with the Northern Railway of New Hampshire. This led to other railroad positions, until he had filled almost all of them, including brakeman, conductor, etc. For four years he acted as station master at Andover and Lebanon, N. H. His duties as station master included shoveling snow, helping wood up the engines, attending to baggage, and in fact doing every form of work within an area of a mile of the depot, to say nothing of acting as telegraph operator.

Mr. Burbank began his active connection with the paper industry as bookkeeper in the mill of Warren F. Daniell, at Franklin, N. H.; since then he has been actively identified with the manufacture of paper. When the Daniell mill was sold to the Wiggins Paper Company, of which the late William A. Russell was president, Mr. Burbank remained with the latter company, gaining the aid, encouragement and friendship of Mr. Russell.

Through his association with Mr. Russell Mr. Burbank became connected with the Russell Paper Company, of Lawrence, Mass., and the Fall Mountain Paper Company, of Bellows Falls, Vt., and other companies. When the mills owned by these companies became a part of the International Paper Company Mr. Burbank was elected second vice president of the company, and later succeeded William E. Spier as treasurer, which position, together with that of president, he still holds.

Mr. Burbank is well known in Atlanta, he having visited here several times, and the news of his promotion was received here with much pleasure by those who know him.

Mr. Burbank is a native of Franklin, N. H., where he was born in 1843.

On ending his school days he served a clerkship of a few years in a country store, meantime studying telegraphy.

OF, FOR, BY, AND ABOUT WOMEN

A Noble Work for Women.

Through organized effort and despite the social activities, if not excesses, charged to them, each day the women of the city and the state at large add one more chapter to the noble work being accomplished by them in the cause of humanity, one way or another.

Indeed their work as individuals and in organization seems to be penetrating into dark places, unexplored parts and in neglected, isolated sections, where even the religious missions, on account of their activities, if not excesses in vicinities of population and public opportunity, seem too busy to go.

The last direct action taken by women in organized effort was at the recent meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy in Augusta, Ga., when they decided to make their chief work this year that in the interest of the mountain whites of north Georgia.

They will do this through helping the industrial school of Rabun Gap, Ga., by completing the building of the Francis Barton dormitory for girls, and by assisting Andrew J. Ritchie, the founder and director of the school, in securing a fund for the maintenance and continuance of the school, now making courageous struggle for existence.

These mountain people, in their rugged, isolated environment, their primitive ways, who are increasing in number and decreasing in all the qualifications out of which might be expected a helpful citizenship, have been much talked of, exploited in the stories of people, and acting more attention to themselves.

On the themes of their discourse, they have been written about in the papers, and many have worked earnestly in their behalf, yet aside from Miss Berry's school, near Rome; the Tailulah school, not yet completed, and the school at Rabun Gap, these people have had no general concentrated effort made in their behalf.

Almost the same people who have sympathized with Miss Berry in her school have been the ones who have from time to time come to the aid of Mr. Ritchie.

The Daughters of the Confederacy have determined, however, that their work shall not be merely temporary, but continuous. They will at once go to work to finish the Francis Barton dormitory, and help secure funds for the maintenance of a school that stands as the only humanitarian effort for a large contingent of God's unloved people, who live in a state which is counted among those which have vast resources undeveloped from lack of intelligent labor.

ISMA DOOLY.

Fashionable Furs.

The delicious air of yesterday brought from their camphor ball boxes, madame sables, and ermine, and chinchilla, her fur lined capes and coats and her wraps donned to Jack Frost. Fashion has no more respect for furs than for jewels or laces. They must be changed to suit the modes, and cut and pieced to please fashion.

This year the fur stole is flat and broad, and not so long as heretofore. The rounded boa is no longer a la mode.

Muffs, like the stole, are flat in appearance, and many of them are combined with velvet, a find which adds to their dressiness, and makes them none the less expensive.

Bits of fur are to be used very much as a trimming, the darker furs, ermine, chinchilla and lighter fox, on the darker gowns, the velvets and cloths.

Southern Dishes.

SALADE CROCEOLA.
This salad is composed of French beans, tomatoes, cucumber, cauliflower and mushrooms, and each ingredient must be prepared separately before it is mixed with the rest. After cooking the French beans and cauliflower carefully and peeling the tomatoes and cucumber, season them separately with oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, and chopped chervil, and soak the raw mushrooms in lemon juice with a little salt to keep them a good color. Arrange the ingredients in separate groups in a salad bowl, with the mushrooms on the top.

SALAD BERENICE.
Cut up the tender part of a bundle of green tipped asparagus into small slices about the size of a pea, chop up a dozen artichoke bottoms into dice of the same size, also a pound of French beans and half a pound of new potatoes. Cook each of these ingredients separately in boiling salted water, and drain them well. Mix them all together with half a pound of tomatoes which have been freed from skin and pulp, and cut into dice, and dress the salad with a mayonnaise sauce, to which half an ounce

Tea Talk.

"Is it to be wondered that woman resort to base means in order to attract clever people to their 'at-home' day in hope that they will bridge the gaps which almost yawn of their own accord and relieve tea-talk from its fearful fatality?"

This question, asked by an English writer, is encouraging to "American cousins," for, if in old England, where the habit of tea-drinking was first taught, they have not built up a standard of nice talk, we need not feel so badly about the inane discourse that frequently happens at American tea gatherings.

"Tea-talk, unlike dinner-talk, cannot be organized even by the most diplomatic hostesses," he tells us.

The gentle cynic takes us by nature to the topic of dinner-talk, yet how much might be penned concerning the agonies of afternoon sail conversation. Is it to be wondered that women resort to base means in order to attract clever people to their "at-home" day in the hope that they will bridge "the gaps which almost yawn of their own accord," and relieve tea-talk from its fearful fatality?

"Tea-talk, unlike dinner-talk, cannot be organized even by the most diplomatic hostesses; it is either spontaneous, or it is not at all; it cannot run in duets, yet if it expands to quartets it is almost certain to cause anguishing solitude to those who haplessly have been 'left out' of the conversation. The masculine idea that feminine teas are very much as Oliver Wendell Holmes describes them, 'Giggles, gabble, and glee,' may be attributed to the strange fact that the conversation of women unbalanced by the utterance of man is apt to increase in velocity until its pace becomes unbearable except to the thoroughly inured. The statistic lover would probably declare that tea-talk as compared to dinner-talk shows a proportion of five words to one, and that the conversation of a single tea would furnish enough words for half a dozen dinner-parties.

But the average level of the worst strain of tea-talk—that of the "at-home" day—is undoubtedly out of all proportion, more helpless, more frail, and more easily broken than any other variety of social conversation. In years gone by it was held sacred, to certain subjects, but women generally have awakened to the necessity of bargaining the pet topic of the Victorian caller. The circle in which "servants" is talked is becoming narrower and narrower, and that reprehensible indulgence in confidence which was once wine to the heart of women, has now been relegated to more or less befitting occasions. Under these conditions there might well be hopeful signs in the direction of the foundation of a school of intelligent tea-talkers, but no movement has yet been made. Tea-talk is in a very serious condition, and we believe that it might be killed by its own inability if it were not for the fact that tea is an inevitable circumstance in the routine of calling and card-leaving, and if the indictments born and bestowed in order to "arrange our pasteboards" were infinitely greater than this, we should continue to support them, because we have grown to believe that our inmost feelings, our movements and intentions, the great events in our lives and the lives of our children, must be signalled by the one and only accepted code. The British matron recognizes in her visiting card at once her battle standard and her flag of truce; she takes the earliest opportunity of teaching her daughters (if it may be said) how to play their cards; and she is entrusted by her husband with the power to carry him about by proxy in her card-case, where she assumes the interesting arithmetical condition of being able to double or even treble himself at will. In short, card-leaving has come to be regarded as so adaptable and so expressive a medium, that although the ceremony of paying calls for the purpose of leaving cards and perpetrate in tea-talk has been condemned and ridiculed since the days of our great-grandmothers, although many have done their utmost, and almost succeeded in alienating themselves from it, and notwithstanding the fact that it is full of pitfalls which may beset even the wary, are powerless to discard it, and quite unable to find any other social signal means of indicating our intentions towards our fellow-members of society.

The City Beautiful.

Under the head of the "City Beautiful," a group of Georgia's brainy women will talk at the forthcoming convention of club women in Tifton. They will talk about the aesthetic side of the city, the small town, the village and the rural school center, each to be talked of by a woman who has accomplished something in bringing about improvements in these lines. At a large convention holding here not

LUMPKIN & TORRANCE

DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP

The well known insurance firm of Lumpkin & Torrance, in charge of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, for Georgia, has been dissolved, Mr. Lumpkin continuing with the agency, as before.

The following statement, furnished by Mr. Lumpkin, is self-explanatory: "On November 2 Thomas B. Lumpkin purchased the interest of B. W. Torrance, in the firm of Lumpkin & Torrance. Mr. Lumpkin in future will represent the company as general agent for the state of Georgia. On January 1, 1907, Mr. Torrance purchased from Mr. Lumpkin an interest in the agency. Mr. Lumpkin, at that time, being general agent for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company for the state of Georgia. Mr. Torrance's interest, however, was a nominal one, as he did not purchase any part of the old business, which had been written by Mr. Lumpkin prior to January 1, but simply purchased a half interest in the good will of the agency and such business as would be placed on the books from January 1, 1907. "All of the old renewals that had previously been placed on the company's books were the individual property of Mr. Lumpkin, consequently Mr. Torrance only had an interest in the business written by Lumpkin & Torrance from January 1, 1907, up to date."
